Check Your Car, Drive Safely Over the Holidays

Christmas is a time for meditation and merriment, not motorized murder.

The Christmas holiday is almost here again and Christmas driving is apt to bring its usual quota of maiming injuries and sudden deaths.

You can do your part, points out the National Automobile Club, to see that these injuries and deaths are kept to a reasonable minimum.

Begin by checking on the mechanical condition of your car.

Sun Will Be Closed Monday; Phone Ads Now

Monday is Christmas Day, and, like almost every other business, The Sun offices will be closed.

The same holds true for New Year's Day, a week from Monday.

Although classified advertising deadlines will remain the same, you are urged to place them early because time is shorter than you think.

Deadline for new classified ads is Tuesday at 10 a.m. Too late to classify will be taken until noon Tuesday.

But, with the offices closed Monday, it would be wise to phone by Saturday noon, if possible.

Just call 284-4444, CL 4-4444 or YE 4-4444 and ask for the classified department. You will get prompt service and speedy results.

Have the brakes been a little loose lately, have they taken more than the usual distance to bring you to a stop?

HAS THE windshield wiper blade lost its pliability to the point where it just smears the moisture and mud, doesn't wipe it away?

Have the tires lost all their tread?

Are they so smooth now that the slightest thing can throw you into a dangerous skid?

Consider these points and others like them and, if corrections seem to be called for, make these corrections. You can drive no more safely than the mechanical condition of your car permits.

How about your knowledge of, and respect for, our driving rules and regulations?

DO YOU know who has the right of way at intersections? Do you know about the proper way to make signals in traffic, and about the proper procedure for getting out from the curb or passing another car on the open road?

Do you know what the law says about drinking and driving? When you've had a few drinks do you begin to grow arrogant and reckless, want to "show all these other guys"? Or do you have enough sense to turn over the business of driving to one who has a clear head?

Check on these things. Know about the mechanical condition of your car, about these driving rules and regulations, and about your attitude towards these rules and regulations.

Drinking? Don't Drive CHP Says

Anyone question the admonition, "If you drink, don't drive"? All doubts should be dispelled by these December, 1960, statistics about accidents on the California highways, issued by the State Highway Patrol.

Fatal accidents involving drivers who had been drinking were just under one-third of the total reported.

Over one-fifth of the accident tally involved drivers who had been drinking.

THE HIGHWAY Patrol says special driving care should be exercised between the hours of 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. — noting in particular that almost half the accidents that occurred between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. involved drivers who had been drinking.

During 1960, members of the highway patrol arrested an average of 37 drivers per day who had been drinking.

ONE BRIGHT NOTE, this is a decrease in the state of 3.8 per cent compared to 1959.

One hundred eighteen or 10.1 per cent of the had-been drinking fatalities during the year were recorded in December.

Christmas facts revealed that eight persons died in Contra Costa County in automobile accidents over Christmas and New years. Other totals were: 69 injured, 38 injury accidents, 12 drunk arrests and 460 arrests for moving violations.

STATEWIDE the report revealed that on Christmas, 1960, 56 were killed during the 78-hour period between 6 p.m. December 23 and midnight December 26.

Of these 42 were killed in the unincorporated areas and 14 in incorporated cities.

The patrol made 282 arrests for drunk driving violations and 9213 arrests for other moving violations in the same period.

ON NEW YEAR'S 46 were killed statewide during the 78-hour period between 6 p.m. December 30 and midnight January 2, 1961. Of these 24 were killed in the unincorporated areas and 22 in incorporated cities. The patrol made 211 arrests for drunk driving violations during the period and 10,938 arrests for other moving violations.

Christmas of 1951 went on record for the all-time high—69 persons—in traffic fatalities, over a four and one-half-day holiday period.

New Year's of 1952, 63 persons were killed during the four and one-half-day holiday, the all-time high.

'Hump' Job Is Lagging

Bay Bridge construction involving "the hump" is 30 per cent behind schedule, but work should be completed by next November.

Ben Balala, project engineer for the California division of bay toll crossings, said contractor Charles Harney is determined to avoid the $2500 per day penalty which begins after the agreed-upon completion date.

Original deadline was October 25, but it was extended to November 1 because of bad weather.

The job involves lowering of the Bay Bridge's upper deck by 16 inches, which would allow greater clearance in the Yerba Buena tunnel.

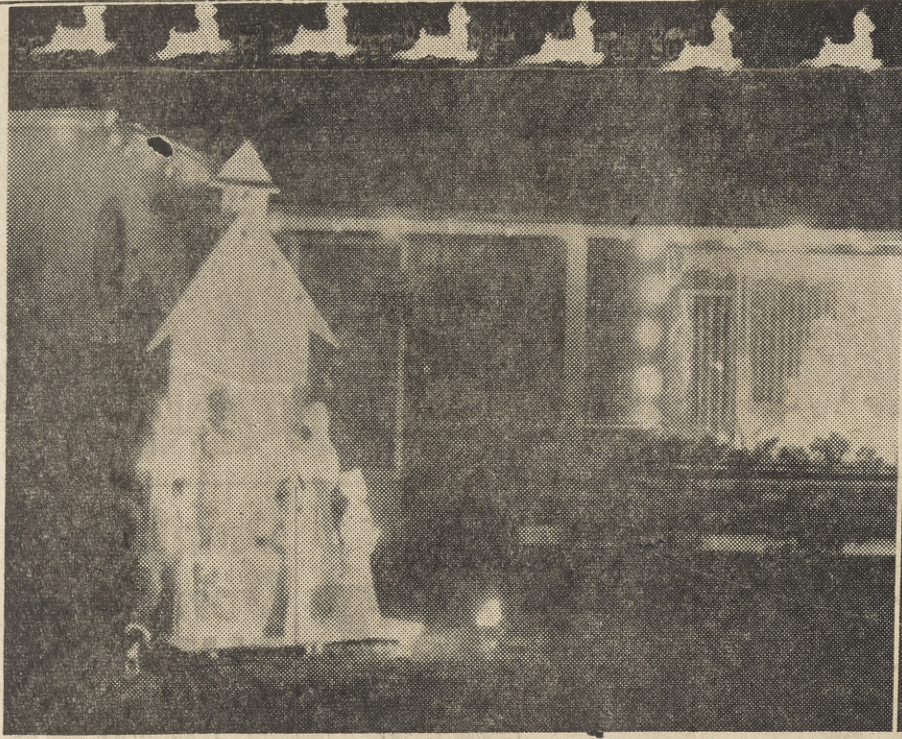

Plans call for one-way traffic on each of the bridge's two levels.

Jernigan Is Realtors' Executive

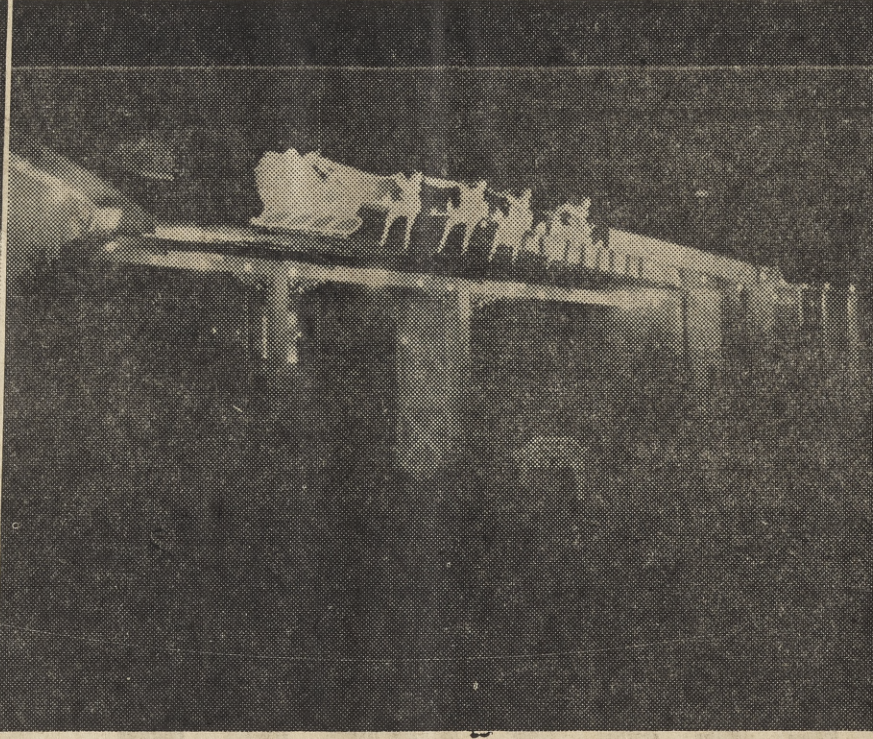

Roger Jernigan of 1550 Parkside Drive, Walnut Creek, has been named executive vice-president of the Contra Costa Real Estate Board.

He replaces Wayne Bailey, who resigned to begin active real estate work.

Jernigan has been executive vice-president of the West Contra Costa Real Estate Board and before that was public relations director and assistant to the executive vice-president of the Oakland Real Estate Board.

REINDEER flying through the night lend enchantment to the L. W. Lawrence home at 6 Van Ripper Lane. A Christmas tree glows from within the home while choir boys form a church scene on their lawn.

SANTA DRIVES away from the chimney of this home at 70 Coral Drive. His sleigh appears to be chock full of surprises, ready for delivery to other homes, via the rooftops. With so many twinkling lights across the front of this home, it was easy for Santa to find.

TWINKLING lights across the front and over the rooftop of this home at 580 Moraga Way form a joyful setting for the Nativity scene on the roof. With "snow" on the window panes, this house might have just stepped off a Christmas card!

CHRISTMAS IN FULL SCALE rings out at the James Hupp home, a favorite place for friends to gather for fun, food and song during the holidays. Here, Jim Hupp sounds a strong bass note as does son David, and completing the caroling group is daughter Laurie Hupp out front, Mrs. Lucie Hupp and Mable Moorman, Kentuckian grandmother who is 84 years young. Ever active in community affairs, Hupp has served the Orinda Planning Commission for seven years. An accountant by profession with John Forbes & Co., SF auditors, he serves as treasurer for both the California Roadside Council and the Contra Costa County Park & Recreation Board. An Orinda Community Church family, both Jim and Lucie share interests in church choir and teaching. An expert cook, Lucie's myriad interests include vegetable gardening, fishing, music and last, but not least, PEOPLE! Sixteen-year-old Laurie Hupp is a Miramonte Junior while David, a UC student in Political Science and Economics, works at the Radiation Lab. Grandmother Moorman grows onions in her garden, sews fastidiously for forthcoming great grandchild expected by the Hupp's oldest daughter Lucy Ann and her teacher-husband Rolf Williams who reside in Walnut Creek. The Welcome Mat is always out at the Hupps; it's just more footworn during the festive season.

Chamber Commends Mrs. Conley

Members of the Orinda Chamber of Commerce, who met December 14 at the Casa Orinda, unanimously moved to write a letter of thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Joe Conley, chairman of the Orinda Beautification Committee, for the committee's work in decorating Orinda for the holiday season.

In other business, Clarence Betz, secretary, announced the new directories are at the printer's and should be in the mail soon after Christmas.

Muffling Is Success

The muffling of earthmoving machines at the East Bay Municipal Utility District's Briones Dam project has been effective in reducing the noise, according to Robert Davis of 18 Normandy Lane, Orinda.

Davis was spokesman for the Orindians who complained to the board of supervisors they couldn't sleep nights, since the big machines were not shut off until midnight.

Shortly after, the mufflers were installed, and the 12 earthmoving machines were moved to another area, with a hill between them and the Orinda homes.

WHAT'S DOING

If you're in charge of entertainment for your next year's club events, you might be interested in the large number of films that can be made available here at the telephone business office.

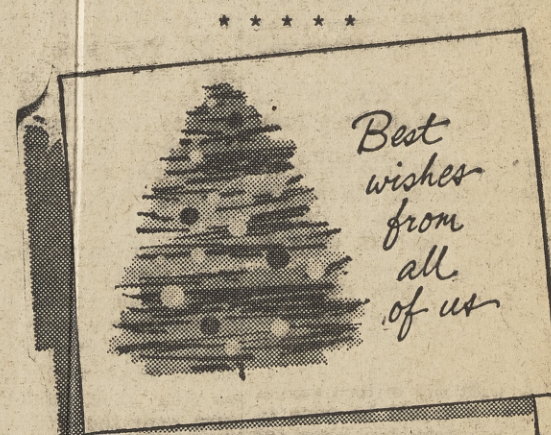

From musicals to interior decorating to the Bell System science shows that have been on television, these films cover a wide range of subjects. Ones on communication systems like air defense networks and missiles are timely and interesting.

Whatever your club's meeting is about, we probably have a film that will add to the program. Why not check with us about them? There's no charge, of course.

More people than ever will be calling home this Christmas. Long Distance lines are busier on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day than at any time of the year.

Christmas is on a Monday this year. So why not beat the rush. Call early during the three-day holiday weekend.

For fast service have the area code and telephone number before you when you call. If you don't already have the number, you may get it ahead of time. This helps speed up handling of your calls. Just Dial Operator and ask for Information at the city you want to call. And dial direct if you can!

Best wishes from all of us

And now from all of us at the telephone company, here's wishing you a joyous Christmas. We don't want the year to pass without saying thanks for letting us serve you. We'll keep on trying to bring you the very best in telephone service.

Freeman Outlines Unification Problems, Procedures

The following remarks, made by William Freeman, member of the County Committee on School District Reorganization, are being distributed to each of the school boards involved in the unification plans for the Acalanes High School District.

His remarks outline the problems faced by the school boards and the questions which will be considered at subsequent meetings.

Freeman said at Tuesday's meeting:

"It is my presumption that now, in response to the resolution of this committee, there will be constituted two separate augmented committees, less county committee members; each to concern itself with a separate proposed unified district.

"If I understand correctly, one of these committees would be comprised of board members of Orinda, Moraga and Canyon plus the high school district.

"Each of these committees would meet separately as study groups and endeavor to resolve and agree upon the complete details of a proposed plan for unification for its district. It may on occasion be necessary for both committees to meet together on certain mutual points that would have to be resolved.

"DR. FRANK Bradford and the county staff will be at the disposal of each of these two committees in establishing what are the questions and major points which will need to be resolved. These include, of course, such things as the handling of existing debt, distribution of property, size of each board and whether the board is to be elected at large or by zones, and so forth.

"But in connection with Plan F there are certain special points on which I believe the county committee will be particularly interested in hearing your reactions and recommendations.

"The first and most important point to me has to do with how you would propose to assign high school population to existing and future high school plants and sites, from the inception of each proposed district through ultimate saturation.

"THE SECOND important point has to do with whether any financial imbalances might result from whatever plan of high school plant distribution you propose, and if so how this might be handled.

"You will note that Campolindo High School is now being built almost on what would become the new dividing line between the proposed two new districts under Plan F. It is designed to draw attendance freely from both sides of that proposed line.

"How would high school population be distributed at the inception of this new district? And where and when would high schools be built to accommodate growth up to saturation?

"WOULD SOME major adjustment of the dividing line between the two districts help smooth out any population or financial imbalances, particularly since Campolindo is now practically on the proposed boundary line?

"You will also note that at the inception of Plan F the Western District will be considerably less than half the school population of the Eastern District. But the greatest growth is to be expected in the Western District, until it ultimately almost matches that of the Eastern.

"What are the financial implications of all this? Does it pose an abnormal threat to the Orinda taxpayer to finance school expansion for this rapid growth without help from Lafayette and Walnut Creek?

"IF STATE aid is being planned upon, since state aid at the high school level is more limiting and confining than at the elementary level, would this impose any undue restriction on the type of high school plants that could be built? Would such restrictions be harmful to the best education?

"You will also note from the estimates of the Odell Report that at saturation one district would be short of high school plant capacity by about 1700 youngsters, based upon presently planned high schools and sites. The other district would have about 1400 over capacity from presently planned high schools and sites. How might this imbalance be resolved?

"THERE WILL be other questions along these lines which I presume your respective committees will dig into, and endeavor to resolve.

"Passage of tonight's resolution should not, however, be construed as approval in any form of Plan F—it is only approval of the extension of sufficient time to permit full study of Plan F.

"Insofar as I am concerned, as one member of the county committee, while I believe complete unification is the best plan, I pledge you that I shall be entirely open-minded toward any complete and detailed proposals for two unified districts which your committees may agree upon under Plan F. While I can't speak for the other county committee members, I am confident they will be open-minded on Plan F, too.

AND I AM confident that all school board members will be just as open-minded toward horizontal unification should it be found, in your studies, that the details of Plan F might turn out to be less than satisfactory.

"I do want to express my own appreciation for the spirit of cooperation and understanding which is evident from the progress that has lately been made towards agreement on unification.

"I am sure this spirit will continue in your studies and I wish you the best of luck in arriving at something we all can agree is best for the education of our children."

NAVAJO INDIANS, some 450 youngsters who attend the Kayenta Boarding School in Kayenta, Arizona, will have a happier Christmas because of students at Inland Valley Elementary School. Park Plans Too Big for Financing

Five million dollars for county parks will be submitted as a bond issue proposal to the people, but the County Park Commission's plans call for spending $7½ million.

Paring $2½ million from the plans has been assigned to a special committee of the commission.

The land purchase financing will remain, but proposals for special features, such as two 18-hole golf courses, camping facilities for large groups, restoration of historical sites and a new road to Briones Park will have to be reconsidered, according to county park director, Duane Mattison.

Wanaka Named Assessor; Vote Is Split, 3-2

E. F. (Fred) Wanaka became Contra Costa County Assessor Tuesday on a 3-2 vote by the board of supervisors.

Wanaka, a resident of 1860 Shuey Avenue, Walnut Creek, has been with the assessor's office since 1946 when he was discharged from the U.S. Army Air Corps.

He replaces C. L. Dunklee, who has been in the office for 32 years and has held the top job since 1955.

Wanaka's appointment is of official January 1.

The "no" votes were cast by Supervisors James Kenny, who said there has been some opposition to the appointment and the people should vote on the matter, and Edmund Linschmeider, who proposed a delay in the appointment.

"Yes" votes were by Supervisors Mel Nielsen, Thomas Coll and Joseph Silva.

Transit Plans Upset by San Mateo County; June 5 Vote Is Doubtful

A June 5 vote on the proposed four or five-county rapid transit system, estimated to cost $939 million, appears doubtful because San Mateo County supervisors have rejected the plans.

This means that new plans for a three-county system or some other alternative will have to be developed, requiring additional months of preparations and consideration by supervisors of all counties involved.

It is possible that the San Mateo County supervisors may change their minds before the withdrawal becomes effective in April, but the supervisors told Bay Area Rapid Transit District directors not to bother to submit a new plan.

ANOTHER hope is that San Mateo County residents may protest against withdrawal, forcing the supervisors to reconsider.

If it turns out that Marin County is not able to participate in the transit system because the Golden Gate Bridge is deemed unsafe for transit trains, there is still another possibility, according to Oakland Mayor John Houlahan.

Houlahan said that the existing Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District might be expanded to provide rapid transit service.

This is a "natural conclusion if the transit operating area dwindles to that now served by our agency," commented William Bettencourt, president of the two-county district.

THE OBJECTIONS of San Mateo County appear to center about its leaders desire to keep the tax rate down and compete with Santa Clara County for incoming industry. Santa Clara County has not been included in the district.

San Mateo County is also served by Southern Pacific Railroad as a commuting service, but this has been deemed by officials as not adequate for the job.

One San Mateo County supervisor is a Southern Pacific executive. Objections to transit plans were also voiced by one of the transit directors representing San Mateo County.

Contra Costa County supervisors were scheduled to discuss rapid transit yesterday as The Sun went to press.

The elimination of San Mateo County from the plans require major changes throughout the system, delaying final planning and approval past the time when an election can be held June 5.

Walnut Hills Ownership In Question

Ownership of the Walnut Hills Country Club is in question at the present time and will be resolved in court.

This fact was brought to light this week in a letter from Arthur E. Lambert to all members of the new club.

A temporary restraining order against Lambert, who served in the capacity of club president, was put into effect December 8.

Robert Stone, Robert Clark, Gean Cannon and Lloyd Eisenhower are claiming ownership of the club.

AT THE present time, this group is in charge of the club. Eisenhower is a San Francisco attorney.

He stated yesterday that although the order was temporary, the four men would be in charge of club for several months, at least. A final decision on the matter cannot be made for that length of time, he said.

Last night as The Sun went to press, a general meeting in which all club members were invited, was held at the Pleasant Hill Elementary School.

The meeting was called to discuss the ownership question, Lambert said this week.

HE STATED that many of the members are concerned about their interests in the club.

According to Lambert, he has received more than 300 calls since December 8 in regard to this matter.

Stone has now assumed the role of club president and manager.

In his letter to club members, Lambert stated that the four men have previously claimed ownership in the club, but that the ownership was under study by the California State Corporation Commission.

He went on to state that "whatever ownership the four individuals ever had was, I believe, liquidated by sales agreements and promissory notes."

"MEANWHILE, under an agreement dated November 21, 1961, the four individuals sold their interest in the club (again) to Walnut Hills Country Club Corporation which is owned by Ed Slater, who is a member of the club."

Lambert further stated that he agreed to the transaction with the provision that it did not affect his part-ownership nor interfere with the management of the club, nor disrupt continuous operation of the club.

Elementary Schools Will Prepare 2-District Plan

By DICK OSBORN

The elementary school districts lying within the boundaries of the Acalanes High School district will have a chance to present their complete proposals for two separate unified school districts to the County Committee for School District Reorganization.

This was the unanimous vote of the augmented committee Tuesday night at Acalanes High School.

The vote, which in effect will form two separate augmented committees for study purposes, was the first unanimous vote of the committee as far as members can remember.

The proposal, made by Mrs. Leonard Grote, a county committee member, will hold in abeyance the motion made at the November 30 meeting which called for putting a proposal for total unification of the Acalanes High School District before voters as soon as possible.

IN EFFECT, no action will be taken on the total unification motion until the elementary districts, including Canyon, Orinda, Moraga, Lafayette and Walnut Creek, have had an opportunity to develop fully their preference for the formation of two unified districts.

One district would include Canyon, Moraga and Orinda, Miramonte and Campolindo High schools; the other would include Lafayette and Walnut Creek elementary districts and Del Valle, Acalanes and Las Lomas High schools.

The elementary districts are solidly behind this plan, which has been labeled "Plan F."

The Acalanes High School District prefers to see total unification of the district.

AT THE beginning of the meeting, Lafayette, Orinda, Moraga and Walnut Creek trustees read letters reaffirming their boards' position in favor of Plan F. Canyon trustee Larry Williams vocally added his support.

Mrs. Lenard Grote then announced that the county committee has considered the wishes of the elementary districts and moved that the original motion be held in abeyance until January 26, which would give the county committee time to consider the matter at the regular February 6 meeting.

County committee member William Freeman then read a statement which outlined the proposals of the county committee (see separate story).

Lafayette trustee Mrs. Helen Brittain asked if the elementary districts could not be given more time, and J. Gordon Ainsworth, Orinda trustee, suggested that the elementary districts could work on a schedule as prepared by the county committee, thus demonstrating progress—a step-by-step approach to the problem. Mrs. Grote's motion was amended to this effect.

WALNUT CREEK trustee Irving Kramer agreed that the elementary districts needed more time and suggested that a joint meeting of the two augmented committees be held to work out details. This was agreed to by trustee Boardman Moore of Lafayette.

Trustee William Lee of the Acalanes board noted that he was impressed with the sincerity of the elementary boards. He stated that his board was still in favor of total unification, but that he approved of the spirit of cooperation being shown and approved of the present plans.

The motion was passed 13-0 to study Plan F.

A meeting will be held January 4 of the elementary boards and the high school district board at which time procedures will be worked out.

Two Million Gallons of Water Lost by EBMUD

A power failure in a high voltage Pacific Gas and Electric Company transformer on Ygnacio Valley Road, Walnut Creek, last Friday, began a chain of events which ended with the loss of two million gallons of East Bay Municipal Utility District water.

The loss of power affected two electric pumps in Walnut Creek which control the flow of water in Aqueducts 1 and 2.

The pump failure caused an increase in water pressure in the lines, which cracked a weak point in the pipes near Holt, San Joaquin County.

Equipment which automatically shuts off the water went into operation, but not before some two million gallons were lost, flowing to the San Joaquin River and to Bear Creek, both in the Stockton vicinity.

How Do You Feel About Unification? Read This

How do you, as a local resident and/or the parent of a child in our public school system feel about the possible unification of the Acalanes Union High School District and the elementary school districts lying within its boundaries?

This matter, which vitally affects each child in the area, will probably be brought to a vote of the public soon after the first of the year, in one form or another.

IN AN EFFORT to find out how the people really feel about the possible choices of various kinds of unification, The Sun has prepared the coupon which you will find adjacent to this story.

If you have any preference towards which kind of unification you would like to see, if any, The Sun would appreciate it if you would fill out the coupon and mail it to Unification Editor, 1001 Oak Hill Road, Lafayette. Please mail it to this address, no matter in which elementary district you happen to live, i.e.: Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Moraga, Canyon or Orinda. The Acalanes district is included, of course.

ROOM has been left for remarks. You may make additional remarks on a separate sheet of paper if you wish.

You need not sign your name, but we would appreciate knowing which community you live in and whether or not you have elementary or high school children, or both, in the district.

The results will be reported in The Sun at a later date.

Haircut Prices Raised 25 Cents

Before heading for the barber shop, dig out an extra quarter for yourself, and another quarter for the youngster.

Prices are $2.25 for adults and $1.75 for children.

They were approved by a two-thirds vote of Local 917 of the Barbers' Union in order to finance vacation and insurance benefits. The meeting was held in the Pittsburg Veterans Memorial Building.

Children's haircuts will cost $2 on Saturdays.

All central county communities are affected.

Former Local Teacher Writes From Moscow

By HELEN CORY

Dear Friends:

After having lived in Orinda since 1940 and worked in the Lafayette School District for 14 years, continuously since 1948, I have many friends in this area. Frequently since arriving in Moscow I have wanted to write to many of you to share my experiences. But time has not allowed. So I hope that The Sun will be good enough to print this letter so that I may give you a glimpse of life in the USSR.

First of all I want to say Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to everybody. I shall miss being at home with my family and friends for the holidays, but plan to spend them with friends in Stockholm.

Moscow itself is not a beautiful city, but there are some spots of beauty in it. Great sections of the city have been built since the Communists took over, and these sections are a monotony of one building after another of the same height, the same color, the same size. Generally speaking the ground floors are occupied by shops, and the upper floors are living quarters.

Each building seems to be from eight to 12 stories in height, and when viewing the city from one of the top floors, one can look down onto small shacks and sheds that apparently are living quarters for some of the less fortunate.

The buildings themselves, even the recently rebuilt ones, are not attractive to look at. The official color for buildings is a sort of dirty yellow with some variations in brown or a pinkish orange.

The Russians seem to be able to build things well or not so well according to the value they put on them. The apartments are not built well. Walking down the street one sees huge holes in the buildings where chunks have fallen out. In some cases they have strung nets above the sidewalks to catch the falling bricks so the pedestrians won't get hit on the head.

On the other hand there are parks where people turn out in large numbers to get some exercise and fresh air. There is a small one just outside of Spaso House (the residence of the ambassador) where I live. It is bordered on three sides by a street and right in back of it is an old church which in itself is a thing of beauty with its many domes and spires.

Although this park is only about half a block long and not very wide, there are always people in it—mothers or fathers or grandparents giving the little ones some air, even at 10 p.m. and even when the ground is covered with snow and ice. The street on the Spaso House side of the park is a very quiet one and frequently teen aged boys can be seen there playing games.

In the fall their favorite game was soccer. More recently I have seen them matching their strength in pairs, each with a long stick used to try to force his opponent's stick to the ground.

Then there is the Moscow River which winds its way through the city. Standing on a bridge at night and watching the play of lights on the water is an engaging pastime. Buildings like the Bolshoi Theatre are quite majestic with their huge columns and imposing entrances. Moscow has many squares with statues of their national figures.

Some of their newer streets, especially, are very very wide and help to overcome the feeling of being closed in that one gets from the buildings. The Kremlin itself is quite a beautiful spot and many of the buildings inside the Kremlin walls are quite old and attractive, especially the churches.

The pride of the city is the Lenin Hills section. Driving out there one is hardly aware that there is a hill, but standing on the walkway with the huge University of Moscow building behind, the river at one's feet, and looking out over the city extending out for miles and miles, one gets his first feeling that here, indeed, is a city.

The people of Moscow are quite interesting. Of course, there are all kinds, just as in any place. There are the educated, the non-educated, the sophisticated, the apt, the cunning, the staid, the prudent, and the judicious. Many are still peasants with all the simple curiosity and unrestrained actions of country folk. Two people will stop to talk on the street and within seconds a huge crowd has gathered. It doesn't look anything like a crowd at home. Rather, everyone is huddled together toward the center like a football team with about fifty on a team.

Then just as suddenly the whole huddle will break as if all the members had received the signal and each will go his own way. Except for a few of the large stores on Gorky Street, the shops are very small. The goods that are available are not adequate to supply all the people, so that one has to "queue up" to buy anything.

So if shopping in an area where there is no room inside the shops, one must stand in line outside. Word seems to get around that in a certain place one can get oranges this morning, or some other equally prized delicacy. Often people will stand in line not knowing what they might be confronted with when they reach the counter.

Spaso House is just two blocks off the Arbat, a famous street even outside Russia. The Arbat is an older street and the shops are not very large, though one can get into most of them and not wait outside. But one cannot easily imagine what it is like once one gets in. Such a solid mass of humanity one seldom, if ever, sees at home. Bodies are crammed tight and one cannot move except with the greatest of difficulty. Some folks are pushers and will elbow their way past everybody to get to the front. But surprisingly it doesn't take long to get waited on as many people get to the front and then find they do not want anything after all.

On the other hand, in the matter of taxis there is a sense of fair play that one seldom sees anywhere. For example, I had dinner one evening with some friends at the Baku Restaurant on Gorky Street. After dinner we wanted to go to a hotel for some drinks and dancing. If one doesn't have his own car, transportation can be a problem.

We called a taxi. After a while we went out to the street to wait, and when the taxi came we started to get in. But the driver didn't think we were the people who had called the taxi because we were on the street. He argued. He and the men went into the restaurant and argued some more. We finally gave up and called another taxi as that driver was not going to let us cheat someone else out of his taxi.

Of course, one really can't appreciate this without realizing that one normally phones for a taxi about 45 minutes or an hour ahead of time.

I have been to some interesting places since arriving in Moscow. Of course, the Bolshoi Theatre is a must. Something different is at the Bolshoi every night. About half the time it is ballet and half the time it is opera. The first night we went there we saw Gyselle—or however you spell it in English.

I had seen it in San Francisco and I must say it compares favorably with the Bolshoi, but the setting of the Bolshoi lends its magic. The very next night we saw Aida there. The Russians do not have the top quality voices that we have at home, but the chorus, the scenery, the production, were all excellent.

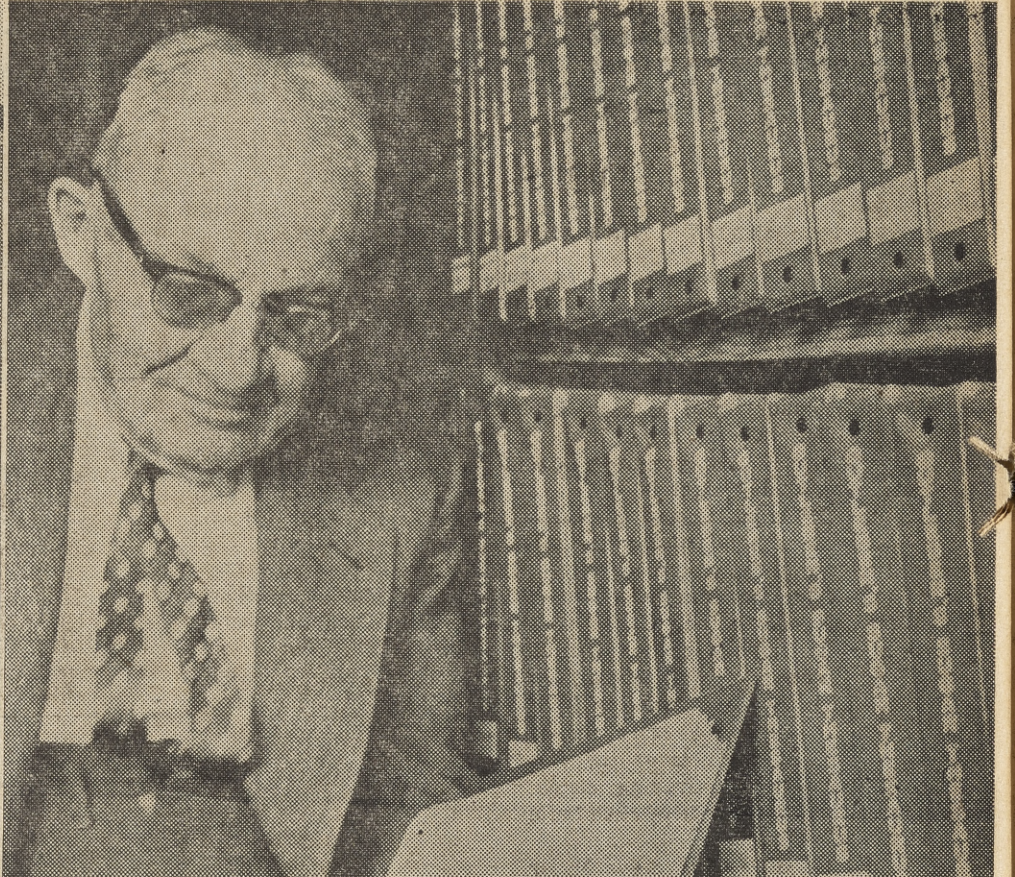

We went to the circus—another must in Moscow. It is not a three ring performance like our circuses at home. There is only one ring. The arena is small and the seats are very near the performing area. We sat in the second row as it was delegates night during the Soviet Congress in November, and our Russian teacher at school—who is good Communist—was able to get passes for us.

She went with us and explained everything for us including the opening ceremonies which was Hail To The Soviet Union and look what we've done for you. We saw the famous clown, Popov. Nadya Pavlovna Victorova, the Russian teacher, took me to the Pupper Theatre which is another must.

We saw An Unusual Concert which is a satire on the famous musicians and actors in Moscow. Another night Nadya Pavlovna took four of us to an artists' club. This is a private club for musicians and painters. Ordinarily people do not have an opportunity to go to such places as they are for members only. Nadya Pavlovna's brother belongs to it as he is a painter, and

WHAT'S NEW WITH PEOPLE in the sugar industry? Only one man in the United States really knows—Dan Gutleben, known as "King of the Sugar Tramps." At his apartment at 1366 Mt. Pisgah Road, Walnut Creek, Gutleben spends many hours each day keeping "Gutleben's Sugar Thesaurus" up to date.

Industry leaders have expressed their gratitude. Gutleben not only became a "sugar tramp" but also an inquiring reporter to gain the facts and stories which form the industry's only comprehensive chronicle.

He's 'King of the Sugar Tramps'

By NORMAN COLBY

Only one man in the United States keeps up to date on the human side of this country's vast sugar beet industry.

He is Dan Gutleben, who works eight to 10 hours a day in his apartment at 1366 Mt. Pisgah Road, Walnut Creek, on "Gutleben's Sugar Thesaurus."

Gutleben's hero is the legendary "sugar tramp" about whom the 50-year development of the sugar beet industry revolves. But Gutleben himself has become known as the "King of the Sugar Beet Tramps" as a result of a coast-to-coast 11-year odyssey.

Since his retirement in 1945 as chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Refining Company, Philadelphia, Gutleben has traveled more than 120,000 miles, collecting anecdotes and personal histories of the now-aging "sugar tramps," most of whom have died or retired.

Add to that 25 years of day-to-day experiences in the Pennsylvania plants, thousands of personal interviews with widows and relatives of departed "sugar tramps," excerpts from sugar journals, gleanings from the book shelves of now-defunct sugar companies everywhere—and you have a massive library of 50 loose-leaf volumes costing more than $50,000 to compile, and earmarked for the University of California's Berkeley library.

How do sugar beet tycoons feel about Gutleben's lifetime efforts? The first comprehensive book in English on the technical aspects of the best industry in half a century was dedicated by 40 collaborators "... to Dan Gutleben who had made the beet-sugar industry conscious of its human as well as its economic values."

What makes the Gutleben sugar library more than just a collection of facts and figures interesting only to a sugar tramp himself?

It is the Gutleben "inquiring reporter" technique which he employed as he and his late wife, Miriam, traveled throughout the United States and Canada, from factory to factory, from home to home.

"The operating equipment of a researcher includes a pair of photographic eyes, sensitive ears and a ready pen," Gutleben confides in his thesaurus.

"Mechanical accessories include a camera that can serve for copying prints, a dictaphone and of course a motor car."

"The most interesting morsels may be casually dropped in the conversations with fellow craftsmen. Accordingly, there must be an ever-ready pad and pencil."

"Thoughts that are often unsought and, as it were, drop into the mind, are commonly the most valuable we have and therefore should be secured because they seldom return, as Locke has said."

"... There is no standard approach to the task, except that it is helpful to tarry at the gas station at the outskirts of the factory town."

"The operator can usually supply directions to the factory site or former site, the location of the library and newspaper office or the important octogenarians. The result will be improved if the researcher takes a leaf from the detective's book."

What is Dan Gutleben after? He wants his revered sugar tramps to be remembered.

They are real to him, and he remembers James Larrow's comment in 1910 that "... directly sugar tramps meet, strangers though they be, backslapping and first-naming begins as if long-lost brothers had just been re-united."

Explains Gutleben: "At the beginning of the 1900s, when the construction of beet sugar factories began to expand, youthful aspirants developed a nomadic disposition."

"New factories were built faster than it was possible to develop operators."

"... A youthful graduate from Louisiana Sugar School could get a job in a southern California beet sugar factory in July and after a 90-day campaign could return home to process a can crop in Louisiana, and after the new year he could make a third crop in the tropics."

"His creed was 'there-ness,' come hell and high water. Time was made for slaves. In the half century since, the roving habits of the clansmen have become extinct, but the name of 'sugar tramp' and the quality of 'there-ness' persists."

There are no young sugar tramps.

Tropic countries now favor their own citizens for the skilled technical work, and young men in this country no longer could find the fast promotions, opportunity and incentive of years past.

Dan Gutleben's son, Don, an Alamo resident, is not a sugar tramp. But Don is an engineer at the California and Hawaiian Sugar Refining plant in Crockett, described as the largest and most luxurious of its type in the United States.

The senior Gutleben also has a brother, C. T. (Phil) Gutleben of Alamo.

But he misses his wife, Miriam, who died last May. She accompanied him on all but the last stages of the 120,000-mile, 11-year campaign to make the sugar tramp immortal. Her presence made his interviews easier, and his driving hours companionable.

She was the sister of a sugar company executive. But Gutleben was introduced to the sugar beet only after he successfully resisted efforts to make him into a clergyman. His father was a Nebraska Lutheran minister who came to the U.S. from Alsace in 1882, when the boy was only four years old.

Sugar tramps became Gutleben's friends after he graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1900, and hired out for work. And their debt to Gutleben was formally acknowledged when he in recent years received the meritorious award of the American Society of Sugar Beet Technologists, and honorary membership in the Sugar Industry Technicians and of many sugar associations.

Every new page prepared by Gutleben is duplicated for the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia. The volumes in the Mt. Pisgah Road apartment and at the institute are secured in binders provided by the Great Western Sugar Company, whose executives decided that the old binders didn't have enough "customer appeal."

Who will carry on the Gutleben tradition?

Don Gutleben doesn't know, and this concerns him. Although he still practices the physical exercises learned from military classes at the University of Nebraska, he has eyesight difficulties. He is not able to devote as many hours per day to the desk, as in the years when Miriam was nearby.

And so it may be that the human chronicle of the sugar industry may end when Dan Gutleben's "ready pen" is finally put aside.

Bond Issues—When?

The county's three proposed bond issues for parks, county buildings and roads may be submitted to the voters next June, next November or early in 1963.

If next June is picked by the county board of supervisors, it is possible that only parks and county buildings bond issues will be submitted, since the road program is still in early planning stages, according to County Administrator J. P. McBrien.

These decisions will be discussed at length by the supervisors in January, McBrien said. "WE HAVE a pretty good idea what the park proposals and county building program will be, but the road program still has to be submitted to the county highway advisory committee, and mayor's conference and the board of supervisors," he continued.

The program, covering 10 years and spending $22.1 million as proposed by the city-county engineering advisory committee, has been recommended to the supervisors.

McBrien noted that if a special election is called by the supervisors for early 1963, the cost would be about $50,000, and all three bond issues might be included then.

"The problem is that there are so many other financial proposals next June," he said. "THERE IS the rapid transit proposal, which will still be a large sum even without San Mateo County."

understand the Russian girls seemed to prefer them. I asked where the Negroes came from. They said they came from Africa to attend their universities.

We visited the Peter and Paul Fortress and saw the cells where many political prisoners have been confined. On the outside of each cell is a picture of some prisoner famous in the struggle against the Tsars. Each picture is outside the cell which the prisoner is supposed to have occupied.

We visited St. Isaac's Cathedral which is the most beautiful I have seen. It holds 14,000 people.

We saw the square outside the Winter Palace where the massacre known as 'Bloody Sunday' occurred. It seems that at one of the times when the Russian people were so oppressed, thousands of them went in a body to petition the Tsar for better living conditions.

Men, women, and children went on a Sunday morning. The Tsar had gotten wind of their coming and had fled the town the night before, leaving word that if any of them came into the court, the guards were to fire on them. The people came in their innocence and without weapons and the guards mowed them down.

We went to the country to Pushkin to visit one of Peter the Great's 14 summer palaces. As we walked along the main wing of the building on the inner court, I counted 80 windows on one level. It is a fabulous place. It is being restored and only a relatively small part is open to the public. Leningrad was under seige for three hundreds days in the last war and many of the treasures in the palace were broken or destroyed, but the job of restoration is moving forward.

We spent a whole day in the Winter Palace or Hermitage as it is called. It is an art museum and here one can see many original paintings of the old masters. It is so huge a place that we almost got lost several times.

I am going to spend a weekend in January or February in Riga, in Estonia. Nadya Pavlovna is going to take me and whoever else wants to go. She says there are many beautiful things to be bought there at a reasonable price. I cannot say the same for Moscow. The things one wants to buy cost a small fortune. If it is reasonable, the quality is such that you would not care to own it. We have a two-week vacation in the spring and I hope to spend it in the south—the Black Sea, Yalta, Tashkent.

And the state has proposed $650 million in bond issues for school construction, state buildings and veterans loans.

"My inclination would be to put all three of our local bond proposals together if they are ready by June, but that probably won't be until next November or early in '63," said McBrien.

The 10-year road program would spend $12.9 million in unincorporated areas and $9.2 million within cities, and would be jointly financed on a need basis rather than by any formula, according to the city-county engineers' report.

A PRIORITY has been assigned to 133 projects, with Ygnacio Valley Road widening to four lanes from Civic Drive to Homestead as first on the list. The Ygnacio Valley Road job would cost about $170,000.

Third on the list is Sycamore Valley Road in Alamo, from State Highway 21 to Freitas Road, 40-foot road with bridges, $260,000.

No. 4 is Willow Pass Road, State Route 24 to 21, rebuild and widen to four lanes, including bridge, $136,000.

No. 6 is Moraga Way-Camino Pablo to Glorietta Boulevard, widen to 44-foot pavement, $183,000.

The county bond issues were first proposed by McBrien as follows: $25 million for roads and highways, $5 million for county buildings and $5 million for parks.

We visited the Peter and Paul Fortress and saw the cells where many political prisoners have been confined. On the outside of each cell is a picture of some prisoner famous in the struggle against the Tsars. Each picture is outside the cell which the prisoner is supposed to have occupied.

We visited St. Isaac's Cathedral which is the most beautiful I have seen. It holds 14,000 people.

We saw the square outside the Winter Palace where the massacre known as 'Bloody Sunday' occurred. It seems that at one of the times when the Russian people were so oppressed, thousands of them went in a body to petition the Tsar for better living conditions.

Men, women, and children went on a Sunday morning. The Tsar had gotten wind of their coming and had fled the town the night before, leaving word that if any of them came into the court, the guards were to fire on them. The people came in their innocence and without weapons and the guards mowed them down.

We went to the country to Pushkin to visit one of Peter the Great's 14 summer palaces. As we walked along the main wing of the building on the inner court, I counted 80 windows on one level. It is a fabulous place. It is being restored and only a relatively small part is open to the public. Leningrad was under seige for three hundreds days in the last war and many of the treasures in the palace were broken or destroyed, but the job of restoration is moving forward.

We spent a whole day in the Winter Palace or Hermitage as it is called. It is an art museum and here one can see many original paintings of the old masters. It is so huge a place that we almost got lost several times.

I am going to spend a weekend in January or February in Riga, in Estonia. Nadya Pavlovna is going to take me and whoever else wants to go. She says there are many beautiful things to be bought there at a reasonable price. I cannot say the same for Moscow. The things one wants to buy cost a small fortune. If it is reasonable, the quality is such that you would not care to own it. We have a two-week vacation in the spring and I hope to spend it in the south—the Black Sea, Yalta, Tashkent.

(Mrs. Cory's letter will continue in next Week's Sun)

And the state has proposed $650 million in bond issues for school construction, state buildings and veterans loans.

"My inclination would be to put all three of our local bond proposals together if they are ready by June, but that probably won't be until next November or early in '63," said McBrien.

The 10-year road program would spend $12.9 million in unincorporated areas and $9.2 million within cities, and would be jointly financed on a need basis rather than by any formula, according to the city-county engineers' report.

A PRIORITY has been assigned to 133 projects, with Ygnacio Valley Road widening to four lanes from Civic Drive to Homestead as first on the list. The Ygnacio Valley Road job would cost about $170,000.

Third on the list is Sycamore Valley Road in Alamo, from State Highway 21 to Freitas Road, 40-foot road with bridges, $260,000.

No. 4 is Willow Pass Road, State Route 24 to 21, rebuild and widen to four lanes, including bridge, $136,000.

No. 6 is Moraga Way-Camino Pablo to Glorietta Boulevard, widen to 44-foot pavement, $183,000.

The county bond issues were first proposed by McBrien as follows: $25 million for roads and highways, $5 million for county buildings and $5 million for parks.

Some Teens Take to Snow; Others Work

By KITTY MIKA AND ANN LINCOLN

"A Japanese Holiday" drew quite a crowd to the Junior Prom last Friday night. The decorations were terrific, especially the big Buddha who sat on the stage and presided over the dance. The band was right in the swing of things, and between polkas, and cha chas, they even played a few numbers to twist to.

The juniors tried to keep the theme of the dance a secret until the last few days. They were also madly decorating up until the very last minute—a few guys were still out there at 6 o'clock Friday night.

AMONG THE many couples munching on fortune cookies, reading their mystical fortunes, and taking a few breaks to take advantage of the music, were, Mimi Loomis and Paul Lockland, Byrnace Thraikill and Gary Rose, Barbie Brush and Clint DeWitt, Jackie Edenhorn and Larry Lawman, Emmy Grah and Scott Anderson, Carol Manson and Rick Cannon, Becky Horne and Mark Rasmusson, Barb Reynolds and Mike Soren, Leanne Russel and Rick Bowles, Jeanette Miller and Mike Saputo, Sherry Odenthal and Pat Gilmore and countless others.

The refreshments at the dance seemed to be one of the biggest hits of the evening, at least Brad Harlan thought so. He was on his fifth piece of cake before the midnight hour was even close at hand.

Speaking of food, Steve Miller had a dinner for five senior couples before the prom. Mrs. Miller was dying to take pictures, but none of them were willing to cooperate.

MARC JACOBS and Brad Peter, Nancy Engelhard and Mike McQuaid, and Jo-an Scholberg and Brad Harlan were some of those enjoying the delicious dinner, and ducking from the ever-present camera.

Bill Ottman was another senior boy who had a dinner, but on a smaller scale. He and Sue Nattress, and Steve Baker and Nancy Bregar leisurely ate their dinner by candlelight. According to Nancy, it was great.

Sharon Nielson held a small dinner party at her house, too. Wendy Wilcox and Sharon fixed the dinner, consisting of soup and crab louie, all by themselves. Quite an accomplishment, I'd say.

After the dance, Cheri Romer had a party, and a slumber party after the boys left. With everyone worn out from an evening of dancing, it was a quiet party.

NANCY HENRY and Gary Holtwick, Charlene Mosotto and Tom Gunn, Betsy Blossom and Mike Smith, Bonnie Kent and Ron Jouthos and Peter Reed and Carol Goldsmith were just a few of those sitting around the Christmas tree and talking. As usual, the girls who stayed for the slumber party spent a sleepless night.

All in all, the 15th was a night to remember, and a great way to start off two weeks of blissful vacation.

With vacation here, teenagers thoughts are turning towards the snow, and many are headed for the High Sierra for at least part of their vacation. Kay Williams, Jo-an Scholberg, Brad Harlan, Jackie Villata, John Lackie, Sharon Nielson, Hester Harris, and Mary Baker are just a few of those who plan a holiday of skiing.

Bob Pothier is full of trust, or else just plain crazy. He has let Sharon use his car for the whole week before Christmas. If you see a white Ford bobbing around Orinda, don't be surprised at the feminine face behind the wheel!

MANY MIRAMONTE seniors seem to have become working girls over the holidays. Jo-an Scholberg's cheery face can be seen in the men's department at The White House, Linnet Trefts is back at Penney's, of course in the infants' department—where else ?? Linda Lindsay and Cheri Romer are both selling their vacations away at Capwell's. There are still quite a few loafers, though, or some that just applied too late??

Back to Miramonte business for a short space. The Matadors beat Sunset High last Thursday, so let's see everyone at the first league game against Clayton Valley when school starts again (perish the thought)—the game is FREE.

If anyone has anything to put in the column, please phone CL 4-8595, or CL 4-2940.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Attempt to Save Wife, Baby Fails

Services were held Monday at Santa Maria Church for Mrs. Nanette McEligot, 34, who died at home Thursday. She was an expectant mother.

Mrs. McEligot was discovered unconscious on the bedroom floor by Miss Nanette Marianne who summoned the Orinda Fire Department. Efforts to revive her failed, according to sheriff's deputies.

Her husband, Dr. Robert C. McEligot, returning from making a professional call noticed the fire department vehicles outside his home. He dashed in the house and in a desperate effort to save his unborn child performed a Caesarean operation, but the female infant was dead. The double tragedy occurred at the McEligot home, 36 Miner Road.

They'll Soon Be Off to Europe . . With 5 Children

Copenhagen, Denmark will be the destination of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Radcliffe and their five children when they emplane for New York January 22.

An associate professor at the University of California, Radcliffe will be taking a sabbatical leave. The family, of 371 Silverado Road, will spend several months in Copenhagen while Radcliffe studies and lectures and will tour Europe extensively.

including trips to Italy and Spain. A Cal graduate himself, Radcliffe teaches mechanical engineering and has done part-time research at the university with a joint project of the colleges of engineering and medicine. WHILE IN Denmark he will collect information pertaining to geriatric patients, work on a new program of prosthetics and give lectures. His work will be with the International Association for Aid to Cripples.

According to Mrs. Radcliffe, the children are "very excited" about the trip, which in addition to the cross country flight includes a voyage across the ocean on the S.S. American. Asked about schools, Mrs. Radcliffe said, "We plan to tutor the children, or perhaps find a tutor in Denmark for the first few months when we will be traveling considerably. After that I hope they can enter a Danish school."

Clark, 14 is a student at Del Valle; Kimberly, 12, attends Fairview School; Bill, 9 and Lisa, 7, are students at Merriewood. Kevin at one year is unconcerned with school books.

MRS. RADCLIFFE said the schools here have been most helpful in planning advanced work.

Friends in Denmark have written to warn the Radcliffes to bring warm clothing, adding that Denmark is covered with a sheet of ice that doesn't melt even during the middle of the day. The family plans to purchase some winter clothing in New York. "The children are growing so fast, however," she added "that we will have to purchase some things in Denmark." The Radcliffes will spend a full year in Europe.

Hats Off To...

Mildred Winslow Who Works to Spare Trees

TRIM A WHOLE FOREST with birds in songs, please, in honor of Mildred Winslow who for 10 years has worked vigilantly in all phases of good planning and conservation.

The Charles Hill lady, who began her conservation work in Berkeley as a member of the Berkeley Garden Club working with school children in the Penny Pines planting project and also helping to launch the litterbug campaign there, says that "Now more than ever, people are primarily concerned with preserving this locale's natural resources and God-given beauty." "Conservation is good planning," adds the interesting Orinda Beautification booster whose husband Basil and landscape-architect son Alan (he instructs at the University of Syracuse) share her enthusiasm and concern.

Mrs. Winslow has been instrumental in the Save The Redwoods program, and good freeway planning; also sought to save her favorite Canyon area, which she compares to Muir Woods, from too much commercial traffic. A past vice-president of the Contra Costa County Park and Recreation Board, she has served as a board member for the past six years.

THE FAMILY'S favorite hobby is their cabin in the High Sierra; Millie's pet forte is flower arrangements and her Christmas decor, you might guess, are nature's own greens, berries, pods, boughs and cones in their natural state.

Father, Son Honored at Scout Court

Paul Majka and his father, Stan, were honored December 14 at an Eagle Court of Honor for Troop 200 at the Orinda School.

Paul received the top honor of scouting, the Eagle Scout badge, which requires completing the ranks of scouting and passing 21 difficult merit badges. In addition, the award, requires participation in scout, school and community activities.

Stan Majka was to have received the Eagle Scout badge in a surprise ceremony. However, at the last moment, officials discovered the qualifications for Eagle Scout today, vary somewhat from those enforced when Majka was a boy.

Years ago as a Boy Scout, Majka passed all the requirements for Eagle except for his life-saving merit badge. When he realized this year that Paul would become an Eagle, he decided to finish his requirements too.

Unknown to Paul, he passed his life-saving merit badge last fall. Troop officials planned to honor father and son at the court of honor, awarding Eagle Scout badges to both.

Instead, Paul received his badge alone, but his dad was also honored with special recognition ceremonies.

Stan Majka, Jr., was awarded his second class badge. The family resides at 10 Casa Vieja.

Student Conducts Unique Campaign

William G. Beckwith of 3169 Diablo View Road, was one of 12 Oregon State University business students who conducted a unique advertising campaign for a Corvallis merchant during fall term.

As part of their training in a class on advertising principles and practice, the students prepared an extensive advertising campaign for a Corvallis department store.

The store provided the budget for advertising and the students handled promotion features, newspaper and radio advertising, and a style show as an evening feature in the store.

The advanced advertising class carries out a special project each term to give students actual experience to go along with classroom studies.

Beckwith is a junior in the school of business and technology. All of the students participating were juniors and seniors.

Fire Marshals Issue Greeting; Warn of Danger

Fire marshals of the Orinda and Lafayette Fire Departments, on behalf of their crews wish everyone a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

In issuing the greeting, the fire marshals added, "Don't forget about fire hazards during the holiday season, don't mar the fun and excitement with tragedy."

"Have a safe Yule season full of joy and happiness by following the 'Golden Rule for a Happy Yule'."

Following is the "Golden Rule": "Stand tree in water or bucket of wet sand. Check tree lights for frayed wire, loose sockets. Keep tree away from radiator, fireplace and doors. Use only fire resistant decorations. Turn off tree lights when you go out."

HOLIDAY DRIVING

Choral Works Provide Beauty At Christmas

Among the many beautifully impressive Christmas concerts at this season was the one presented recently at the Lafayette-Orinda Presbyterian Church featuring two ambitious choral works—Bach's Magnificat and the modern composition of Ron Nelson's, The Christmas Story. The church sanctuary was filled to capacity as the Rev. Leonard Weeks directed oratory and cantata choirs and instrumentalists numbering more than 100 who sang and played in praise of the nativity.

The Rev. Carl Thomas, pastor of the Lafayette-Orinda Presbyterian Church, was narrator for Nelson's Christmas story. The organist was John Burke and baritone Richard Frock the soloist. Members of the brass choir accompanying were Boardman Moore, Bob Galletti, Bob Brand, Ken Jones, Bob Reichert, Stan Shoptaugh and Bill Eldridge III.

Soloists in the cantata choir for the Magnificat were Helen Kimball, soprano; Nancy Allen, alto, and Bill McCormick, tenor. Instrumentalists were Evangeline Homold, Bill Jensen, Walter Bells, Kathy Scott, Minnie Lewis and Pat Davis.

Following the late afternoon concert, the entire musical group and their spouses were feted by the rest of the church membership who supplied a varied potluck supper at pastor Thomas' home, 3900 Happy Valley Road, Lafayette.

Still to come during the Christmas season under Week's direction are the Christmas Eve midnight service of the Westminster (high school) choir which will present Hunkins' cantata, Wondrous Love, and the Christmas church service, December 24, when the chancel choir will sing the Christmas portions of Handel's Messiah.

Amersoorp to Lafayette, There's a Big Difference

By JEAN JERNIGAN

Joyfully anticipating their first Christmas in the United States, the Willy van Wissierke family of 3481 Monroe Avenue, finds there is a big difference in the way Christmas is observed here, as compared to Christmas in Holland.

Willy, his wife Yvonne (Vonnice) and children, Roy and Joan, have lived in Lafayette just seven weeks. Amersoorp was their "hometown" in Holland. If tradition is followed, there is now one very large and beautiful tree in Amersoorp, just as there is one tall tree in all of the towns of Holland.

UNLIKE our American towns, where sparkling trees are all over town, the focal point in Holland is one beautiful tree in each town. The stores, according to van Wissierke, have very few decorations and the homes have trees and a few inside trimmings, but nothing outside.

While our youngsters go to bed Christmas Eve anticipating the dawn and stockings chock full of surprises, Dutch children experience the same excitement on December 5.

"This date is a special children's holiday," van Wissierke said. "St. Nicholas slips in and leaves gifts, unseen by anyone; this day is for children."

Of course, there are presents at Christmas time, too, and van Wissierke laughingly commented, "This way it costs a lot of money." However, it would seem that rather than costing more for dual special occasion gifts, the Dutch simply spread the fun of the season over a longer period of time.

LAST FRIDAY evening, like so many other commuting dads, van Wissierke stopped on his way home to purchase the family tree. Unlike our seasoned suburbanites, he was unaware of the prices of trees.

"I started to buy a tree, and found I didn't have enough money in my wallet. When I got home I began to tell my wife I was sorry not to bring the tree, when she told me that it didn't matter, we had a tree already," van Wissierke remembered.

"Our good friends at church (Lafayette-Orinda Presbyterian) had given us a tree and there it was, all decorated," he concluded.

Jointly sponsored by the Lafayette-Orinda Presbyterian Church Board of Deacons and a church family, the van Wissierkes also have already made many good friends in their neighborhood.

LANGUAGE is no problem for van Wissierke, he speaks five fluently (English, German, French, Dutch and Indonesian). However, Mrs. van Wissierke, who speaks English with a happy, lilting accent, is not quite as fluent.

"I am real proud of her," was van Wissierke's comment when asked how his wife was managing with the shopping. She knows what she is looking for, but not always the English name for it.

"Neighbors have been real friends and went shopping with her the first time. Now she does real well," van Wissierke explained proudly. He is also justifiably proud of his son, Roy, a student at Lafayette School.

"Roy didn't speak the language at all, but now he is doing real well," his dad said.

CHRISTMAS is not the only area in which there is a "big difference." When asked for a comparison of money and its buying power, van Wissierke startled The Sun reporter by saying, "Food is cheap here."

"One dollar here is the same as three guilders and 60 cents in Holland. Comparing an income of 300 guilders a month in Holland, and $300 a month here, a person could do more here with the $300," he explained.

Dairy products are less expensive in Holland than here, but other grocery and clothing articles are not, according to van Wissierke. "I have to be honest," he said, "but our milk in Holland is much better. He explained that cattle can be seen everywhere as one travels through Holland.

"Our milk is fresh and rich, our other dairy products produced locally are not only good, but less expensive than here."

WHEN IT comes to clothing, though, the picture changes. "A serviceable suit in Holland would cost a month's wages," he explained. "Here, one can get perhaps not what one wants or what is top quality in suits, but at least passable and with wearing endurance for $50 to $75."

"Then too, here the children can wear cottons or other washable clothing all year, but in Holland they must wear woens during the cold months," he added.

Talking to either Willy or Vonnice van Wissierke is a happy experience. Both express warmth, friendliness and courage.

HUMOR TOO, showed when van Wissierke explained that he was currently employed driving a truck. Actually he is "on loan" to the factory division of Dymo in Berkeley.

His experience has been in office work and eventually he will CHRISTMAS in America will be different for the Willy van Wissierke family than what they are used to at home in Amersoorp, Holland. However, they are all smiles as they anticipate the special day beside the gaily decorated tree given to them by friends. Pictured from left are Mrs. van Wissierke (Vonnice), Joan, Roy and Willy. serve in the firm's international office, but at the time of his arrival there was no opening there, he explained.

Languages are van Wissierke's interest and he majored in them during his educational days in Holland. He graduated from high school and completed two years of college, but circumstances at the time did not permit him to continue on through the university level.

Serving in all sections of the American Air Force Base in Holland after college, van Wissierke worked in operations; as the commander's secretary; with publications and with forms management. His most recent work in Holland was with the F.B.I.

IT'S A SAFE bet that by the time his little daughter Joan is ready for kindergarten in September, daddy will be back in the kind of work for which he is, by experience, most aptly suited.

Merry Christmas, Willy, Vonnice, Roy and Joan van Wissierke. We're glad you chose to make California your home.

Cards, Beer Taken from CCC Club

A burglar or burglars with an apparent predilection for playing cards and drinking beer, stole six packs of Bicycle playing cards and an unknown quantity of beer from the Contra Costa County Club sometime after midnight Saturday.

Sheriff's deputies discovered the theft at 2:30 a.m. Sunday. According to their report, the culprit used a rock to break the glass of the front door and climbed through. Deputies said apparently nothing was taken except the cards and beer. A box of coins collected for cerebral palsy was untouched.

Barhart Construction Company reported Monday that a $200 Ingersoll-Rand impact wrench was missing from an inventory of tools at the site of the Campolindo High School, Moraga Road.

Deputies said the company takes a weekly inventory and the wrench was last seen Friday.

A coin meter containing $8 to $10 was taken from an electric washing machine located in an apartment house at 3549 Brook Street, Lafayette.

Apartment owner Claude S. Howell reported the theft to the sheriff's office at 4:20 p.m. last Thursday.

'Tropic' Supply Low in Library

Library users in Contra Costa County will have a hard time obtaining "Tropic of Cancer" although there are 10 hardcover copies and a number of paperbacks.

Since the heavy demand is expected to cover only a short period of time, there is no justification for enlarging the present supply in the county library system, according to County Librarian Bertha Hellum.

Forsman Heads Highway Advisors

Hugh Kenneth Forsman of 3311 Beechwood Drive, Lafayette, has been elected chairman of the Contra Costa County Highway Advisory Committee, succeeding Elliot Hartman.

Forsman has been representing the Lafayette Improvement Association on the committee.

Other officers are Vernon Conway, Concord councilman, first vice-chairman; Claude Greerty of the Martinez Chamber of Commerce, second vice-chairman; Victor Sauer, county public works director, secretary.

The new officers will be installed January 23 at the Concord Inn.

County Assessor Resign

The resignation of Contra Costa County Assessor C. L. (Lou) Dunklee will be submitted next week, he announced.

Dunklee, 66, said, "personal and financial" reasons prompted his decision after 32 years in the assessor's office. He was first elected assessor in June, 1954, and was re-elected in the 1958 primaries over three other candidates.

The appointment of E. F. (Fred) Wanaka to complete the term which expires a year from January was urged in Dunklee's letter to the board of supervisors.

Wanaka, a resident of 1860 Shuey Avenue, Walnut Creek, has been in the assessor's office since 1946, when he was discharged from the U.S. Army Air Corps.

A graduate of the University of California, 1937, with a degree in business administration, Wanaka has been Dunklee's first assistant since 1955.

"Wanaka has all the necessary qualifications, ability, and 'know how' to run the office, and I recommend his appointment without reservation," said Dunklee in his letter.

Dunklee, a graduate engineer from the University of Indiana, was elected county assessor after Justin A. Randall announced he would not be a candidate. He joined the assessor's office in 1929.

Christmas...

a reminder of what we have to share...

There's something about Christmas which leads us to reflect for a moment on the meanings of the holiday.

For many, Christmas is a joyous religious occasion. For others, "tis the season to be jolly." And for the children... there is no end to the thrills and excitement of Christmas.

Running through all these meanings, though, is the spirit of giving and sharing—the spirit which should melt all barriers.

Today, more than ever, international problems impress on us the ever-growing need for the spirit of cooperation among all freedom-loving people wherever they may be. This spirit of cooperation may very well be what we Americans have most to share.

Do Dr. McCunn's Own Beliefs Affect College?

Now that, perhaps, some of the emotionalism has died down surrounding the remarks of Dr. Drummond McCunn, superintendent of the Contra Costa Junior College District, it is time to take another look at the situation.

Dr. McCunn, as you are undoubtedly aware, "commended" the John Birch Society before a meeting of educators in San Francisco recently. This immediately raised a storm of protest from teachers and students alike at the junior college district, and brought forth people on both sides of the question before the board of trustees.

The board of trustees took the stand that Dr. McCunn is entitled to his own beliefs, whether or not they agree with them.

THIS BRINGS UP some very serious considerations, however, which we feel that the trustees simply cannot shrug away.

For example, inasmuch as a man has political beliefs, how far can he go with these before they affect his job?

Does your professional position necessarily limit your right to express your beliefs?

Again, for example, how far "right" or "left"—conservative or liberal—should a man in Dr. McCunn's position be?

This latter is certainly a question for the trustees and the people to answer, because it is important to the entire operation of our junior college, and to the students who attend it.

THERE HAS NEVER been any question that Dr. McCunn is well on the conservative side in his beliefs. There is also little question that his personal beliefs have affected the junior college district. For example, the college sponsors (jointly, with other groups upon request, to be true) American Heritage Days each year.

Similarly, the college last year sponsored a series of lectures on anti-communism, and also sponsored the showing of the film Operation Abolition, taken at the student riots at the San Francisco hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

All of these are "conservative" activities, and all of them directly reflect Dr. McCunn's personal philosophies.

NOBODY IS DENYING Dr. McCunn his right to his own beliefs, but there is a serious question of how his beliefs affect his position as a superintendent of a junior college.

This is a matter of philosophy, and it should be carefully studied by the trustees as representatives of the taxpayers.

A TV Wasteland

Do your children have the TV habit? Do you and your family complain about the great wasteland of TV programming?

Well, if either is the case in your household, you can do something about it.

We are fortunate to have a wonderful educational television station operating in the Bay Area—that station, which carries no commercial advertising, is KQED.

But what can you do if you are one of the vast majority of people in this area who do not receive KQED?

There is a drive now underway to build a translator on the slopes of Mt. Diablo. This device would receive the signal broadcast by KQED, translate it into a UHF signal, and beam it all over Contra Costa County.

The translator, which would be built and maintained by the station, would cost $15,000. That, however, would be the total cost as KQED would maintain it forever.

This may sound like a lot of money, but actually a group of serious individuals have already raised over half of the necessary money—$8600 to be exact.

BUT THAT IS little help, because they are still in need of $6400 before anything can be done.

There is one catch to all this. The translator wouldn't do you, or a school system any good at all until your set is adapted to the UHF channel which will be broadcast by the translator. This is a relatively simple adaptation, and will cost from $15 to $35 per set, depending on the make and model of the television.

CONSIDER THIS, though. If your children are addicted to television, and most are, isn't it worth a few dollars to see that they watch good, entertaining, and at the same time instructional programming?

We think it is.

What can you do about it? Simply mail your check or donation to KQED, Diablo Translator Fund, 1936 Carlotta Drive, Concord.

It Shouldn't Happen...

Not a very pleasant thing to think about during the Christmas season, but it happened right here. Remember a year or so ago when a home caught fire—from Christmas decorations—and a mother lost her life?

A sobering thought, one that reminds us that it can happen right here in our own home.

THEREFORE, it might be a good idea to heed these suggestions for a safer Christmas.

Select a freshly cut tree and keep it outside standing in a pail of water until just before Christmas. Feel the needles to make sure they are firmly attached.

Place the tree in the coolest part of the room, away from the radiators, heaters, as far as possible from the fireplace, and a spot where it won't block exits.

Use a tree stand which has a water container and fill this daily.

DECORATE only with fire-resistant material.

Electric trains should be set up away from the tree as an electric spark could ignite dry pine needles.

Don't use candles on the tree. Check electric light sets for frayed wires. Safest lighting is off-the-tree spotlights. Don't overload electrical circuits with decorative lighting.

Lights on Christmas trees should be turned off when everyone is away from home.

The Staff Corner

Suspended in Time

By HELEN SCHARMER

One pranced about in a red overcoat, the other, in green. One had a golden coat of his own, the other—one of dappled grey.

We took their pictures, our Christmas horses, with the green of new grass and the massive outline of Mt. Diablo as their background. They kicked up and capered, complaining about their long confinement during the rain.

The big grey managed to keep his Christmas ribbon in his black forelock, the palomino, always a clown, kept trying to eat his decoration off his halter.

THESE GRAND ANIMALS are our symbol of a new kind of life, and embody to us—in some mysterious way—the whole enchantment of California.

Their predecessor, a Christmas horse of two years ago, was and is a marvelous, temperamental first horse, a pinto mare, surefooted and big. She is gentle from the ground, attentive to her rider. She has a new owner but lives with us still.

The riders of these colorful horses, the palomino, the grey and the pinto, will spend their Christmas vacation rediscovering the lands of Ygnacio Valley and the Mt. Diablo foothills. They will travel in the tawny hills of Contra Costa County and we shall hear their stories at the table in the evenings.

LIVING WITH this horse family is an old retainer, a roan nicknamed "Fuzzy" and about whom many stories are told. She is 33 years old and spends her winters with us. For some strange reason, she has captured the imaginations of all who hear about her.

Reason surely has no part in this, for she has tried to buck off more than one rider. No one has told her she is in her declining years. She has a healthy disregard for fences, veterinarians and horseshoe men.

She is the symbol of her pasture that has remained the same in changing times. She embodies the enduring wealth of the fields that feed her.

There is an ancient myth, believed until modern times that many horses live to be 70 years of age. These ancients believed that four things were necessary in a fine horse: first, "that he be well formed and of goodly size, with a large chest and muscular limbs; secondly, that he should be beautiful, with a fine head, curved neck, and thick mane and tail; then, that he should show great spirit, which can be judged by the trembling of his limbs. Lastly, the horse should have a fine color."

THESE STILL ARE requirements today.

As we go to the barn on Christmas eve to feed our animals their grain, carrots and apples (an old Scandinavian tradition), maybe for a little while—in the soft light of the barn and with the sound of the "come feed me" nicker in our ears we can be caught in a moment of time when all things are simple and natural.

And as we leave them bedded down on their clean fresh straw, we imagine that their whinny will say to us, "Merry, Merry Christmas."

Have Things Changed?

By REV. LAWRENCE C. GUIDO
Pastor, First Baptist Church,
Orinda-Lafayette

The days were filled with confusion and conflicts and crisis. There were alliances and agreements. Not a few men and nations made treaties and threats. The world was wrapped with idolatry and immorality. Tyranny reigned triumphant.

Then God made His entrance into the world with a Solution for this sickness.

Nearly 2000 years later, we could paint a similar picture. We cringe at the calloused conditions of men's hearts. We are perplexed at the unsolvable problems of our planet. And we are almost conditioned at the continuous conflicts between East and West. We are in a dilemma at the destruction of hearts and homes.

And again God makes His entrance with the Solution.

"... the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." (Luke 2:12) AMIDST THE AGONY of anxiety and the frustrations of fear, once again the star of Bethlehem leads us to the Babe in the manger. God from heaven answers with the virgin born Babe—God with us in the flesh, Prince Immanuel, the ultimate answer to every problem and the final, sufficient Saviour for the world.

But we must realize that something happened to that Babe in Bethlehem. He didn't stay in that manger. He left it and went to Nazareth. The record of His life states that "the child grew" and we know that He became a man. He took His gospel to the people. He healed the sick, lifted the fallen, and finally was flung on a cross. And afterwards, He rose from the dead and sent His Spirit to the Church.

Had Jesus remained a Baby, He could not have done very much for the world. We would never have had His Sermon on the Mount, nor His mighty life with eternal principles, nor His peerless pattern for quality living. He had to grow before taking His death-beam to Calvary. He had to quit the stable and become a man before performing His mission for God and to man.

NO. A STABLE faith is not enough. We must have a cross faith tied to a resurrection faith. We must possess a faith that fulfills the words of the Apostle Paul: "Christ in you, the hope of glory."

We cannot lock Christ in the cattle-shed until next Christmas. We must take Him from the manger and carry His message to the dispossessed and disheartened. We must take Him to the needy people whom He loves. Christianity is not an ox stall religion. It transcends that and invades every area of life. It knows no boundaries and cannot be stopped by a roadblock.

You see, Christmas is not a date on a calendar.

Christmas is a Spirit in eternity.

A man once dreamed that he was in the stable in Bethlehem and saw the Child. He asked, "What are you doing here, little One?" And the Child answered, "I am not doing anything here! But I shall go from here soon. I shall speak parables that will haunt the world. I shall climb a hill, rise on a cross, and the world will not be able to forget. I will overwhelm the grave. I shall establish the Church. I will come again some day to reign as King. My birth in the stable is not as important as the fact that I shall be born in men's hearts around the world!"

JESUS NEVER emphasized His birth in the barn. In fact, He never mentioned it. His interest was in being born into the hearts and spirits and ways of men. Christ is satisfied only when He has moved from His manger into the living room of men's lives.

And again this year, as we find the star and follow it to Bethlehem, may we know with certainty that this was the beginning of God's answer to man's anxiety. May we realize that Christmas only began in a manger, and that Christ must not be kept in a crib. This view of Christmas—with the Babe in a cattle-shed—will not do the world any good. We are much too mature for this. And we must accept the answer of our maturity in the work of Christ that was completed—not instituted.

Allow God to make His entrance into your life with His solution this Christmas.

Shepherds Returned

By THE REV. C. CORWIN CALAVAN
Rector, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church
Orinda

"And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen—" (Gospel of Luke 2:20).

How distressing that people will argue whether carols or nativity scenes shall be permitted if these be foreign to their religious tradition. Others will say they do not approve of any religious observances, since they profess to be non-religious.

Do we contend for a culture wherein everyone's cherished beliefs are ignored in order that no one be offended? Could we not, rather, create a society, where each in turn may offer an expression of his manifestation of love.

AS A CHRISTIAN person I feel entitled to the expression of my tradition. In a nation of whom the majority are said to be Christians—do the majority lose their sacred day because others feel differently? Majorities do have as many rights as minorities.

By the same token I wish the sacred days of other religious traditions were equally recognized and made known to all our children.

To the Christian Christmas day is the commemoration of the birth of one whom he calls the Son of God. In Jesus his followers found the love of God made manifest to mankind. Cannot the non-Christian use this holy day to give thanks to God as he has come to know him. May not the non-religious man pause to give thanks for the love of his fellow men and to re-affirm his faith in the struggle for justice and peace among all.

CANNOT each of us pledge himself to become more tolerant and to strive more sincerely to alleviate poverty, prejudice, and ill will wherever it exists.

Why cannot all of us join together in this season to take stock of our blessings, to bring succor to the needy and compassion to the lonely. May we not all join our voices in a prayer of peace. Let us renounce old angers, discard all pettiness, and offer ourselves to be reborn of God in His image.

Can we not pause in the frantic activity of shopping and party going long enough to bow our heads "glorifying and praising God" for all we have been given in family, friends and the treasures of God's earth.

O Brother Man...

By THE REV. DAVID H. ROMIES, M.A.
Pastor, St. Luke's Lutheran Church,
Walnut Creek

Over nineteen centuries ago, the words of Caesar Augustus were law. The great Caesar was concerned about tax returns, and ordered a census to be taken in all the provinces. The order to return to the city of their fathers included the young and old, crippled people, and even expectant mothers! From the banks of the Rhine and Danube Rivers in Europe to the obscure land of Palestine, the decree of Caesar was obeyed.

For two weeks the roads were crowded with caravans and families journeying each to their own city.

In every village it was the same story . . . no room at the Inn . . . Standing Room Only!

BUT IN the midst of all this confusion and unhappiness, the greatest drama of all time was unfolding. The greatest event in all of human history was about to take place. But who had time for the words of the Prophets? Who had room for the travel weary Joseph, and Mary, the expectant mother?

Bethlehem was a busy place, and the air was filled with talk of taxes, politics, and Caesar.

Today, the community in which we live is a busy place, and the air is filled with talk of bomb shelters, the latest outbreak of war, and the shaky foundation upon which the peace of the world rests. But this is not all! We are rushing to finish our preparations for Christmas. But are we making the right kind of preparations?

Come, let us go out into the quiet of the night in the Judean Hills, where the sky is our roof and the stars our companions. Let us join the shepherds of old and ask ourselves:

O BROTHER MAN . . . Can you see the stars tonight . . . Could you hear the whisper of an angel or the faint cry of a newborn babe . . .

IF YOU CAN . . . Then in a world where pride, prejudice, and greed so often seem to be king . . .

YOU MAY BE READY to meet your King!

O BROTHER MAN . . . Will you bend your knees in endless adoration to your newborn King . . .

O BROTHER MAN . . . Will you open your heart so that the spirit of Christ may make a new start . . .

O BROTHER MAN . . . If you can . . . If you will . . . then the spirit of the Christ may enter in . . .

The night is far spent. The day is at hand. "FOR UNTO US IS BORN THIS DAY IN THE CITY OF DAVID, A SAVIOUR, WHICH IS CHRIST THE LORD."

Miramonte Orchestra Has Debut

An outstanding premiere performance by the newly formed Miramonte orchestra was the finale of a Christmas program presented last week by the department of music at Miramonte High School under the direction of Lawrence Anderson.

Accompanied by the a cappella choir, the orchestra played Handel's Hallelujah Chorus from the "Messiah." The rendition was the climax of a program that included selections by Miramonte's concert band, a cappella choir, girls' chorus and octet.

Months of hard work by a group of parents last year, known as the Friends of the Orchestra, culminated in the formation of the orchestra this fall.

Attack on Language

Russian foreign language students at Acalanes and Las Lomas High Schools are studying Russian through a new approach developed in the past three years with federal funds provided by the National Defense Act of 1958.

Called the "Audio-Lingual Method," by teachers in the foreign field, the new instruction program places heavy emphasis on listening, speaking, reading, and writing, as opposed to the traditional approach of more initial language contact through grammatical structure and application.

Simply explained, the new "A-L-M" approach is based on the concept that language is something an individual talks and hears, he writes or reads.

The young child who learns basic language facility in his early years by speaking and listening is an example of the rationale behind the "A-L-M" approach.

By the time a child attacks the grammatical structure and application of his own language in school, he has had six or seven years working experience using the language and developing his basic ability to communicate through it.

The grammatical refinements represent a finishing cap that enable him to take his gross use of language and develop it into a more perfect and orderly form for effectively expressing himself.

Before a student attacks a scientific application of grammar in a foreign language, this new method holds that he should initially engage the foreign language through an understanding of the sound, the form, and the order and relationship of words and ideas.

In the early weeks of a course of this type, such as the Russian classes now being taught in the Acalanes High School District, there is no reading or writing.

Students work the rudiments of the language sound system. Records and other audio techniques are correlated with class drill.

Instead of grammar rules, patterns of speech are introduced by means of dialogues. The skills of reading and writing follow after the skills of speaking and listening.

The first year materials used in presenting this new approach to language study involve some 14 units, including student practice records which the student takes home to play.

Each record contains the spoken basic dialogues that are part of the daily classroom text material.

The student does his homework by means of these records. In addition, materials are also provided in language drill and dialogue for use in the high school language laboratories.

The language laboratories provide a study and working station for each student so that the student, through his own earphones or microphone, can hear, record, and practice his listening and speaking facility with the language.

A wide variety of recorded tapes and exercises are provided to meet individual student needs and abilities.

Aside from the materials for the students, tests, coordinating handbooks for teachers and other teaching aids are an intrinsic part of the entire classroom procedure.

Enthusiasm for the new approach to foreign education is typified in the remarks of Acalanes Russian teacher James Garvey, who says that this new method of instruction is, "Far more stimulating and meaningful for most students than the traditional approach."

Acalanes District Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Leeland Russell said, "Garvey himself is a reflection of the quality of the teachers who are working with the foreign language development program in the district."

Garvey spent last summer at the University of Washington studying the foreign language teaching techniques under the auspices of the National Defense Education Act.

He has been invited to the National Conference of Foreign Language Teachers in Chicago next Thursday to report on the development of foreign language instruction in Slavic languages in Northern California high schools.

Including Garvey, nine foreign language instructors in the district have been awarded summer or year-long study grants since 1958, to expand their work in the foreign language teaching field. They are as follows:

Acalanes High—Florence Landsmann, French and Italian studies at the University of California; Frank McDonnell, stores. Most recently, he was French, University of Washington.

Del Valle High—John Doroshenko, Russian studies at San Francisco State; Gerald Newall, German, University of Colorado.

Las Lomas High—Don Ludolph, Russian, Indiana University; Hubert Molina, foreign languages, University of Nevada.

Miramonte High—Don Black, Russian; San Francisco State; Mary Henriques, Spanish, University of Nevada.

The research behind the foreign language advanced study courses, the teacher study stipends, and approximately half the school district's expenditure for developing language laboratory facilities, are provided by the federal government under the National Defense Education Act.

Grodins Names Head Buyer

Arnold Michaels, president of Grodins, announced the appointment of Jack B. Rose of San Francisco to the position of buyer of Rams Head university departments.

Rose will assume his new duties January 2. This will be the first time all Rams Head merchandise will be under the supervision of one executive. Formerly the duties were divided among clothing, sportswear and furnishings buyers.

Rose recently resigned from Roos/Atkins, where he started as a stock boy at the age of 20 in 1951, and had broad experience managing departments and stores. Most recently, he was buyer of men's sportswear.

Diablo Valley Science Center Attracts 13,000

Diablo Valley College's Science Center was visited by 17,073 adults and students from other public schools during November, John G. Kelley, assistant dean of instruction, reported today.

The figure brings to almost 13,000 the total number of visitors since the center opened last March.

Kelly said that 1142 persons visited the center's museum and 565 the planetarium.

The facilities will be open again on Saturday, December 30, closing only over the Christmas holiday weekend.

The planetarium, only one of its kind in the East Bay, is open at 1:30 p.m. to youth groups with advance reservations, and at 3 p.m. to the general public without reservation.

Reservations are not needed for museum tours.

There are no admission charges.

The current planetarium lecturer is Robert F. Campbell, physical science instructor at the Miramonte High School in Orinda, whose topic is "Stars and Stories of the December Sky."

Recent additions to the museum are a seismogram of an earthquake November 16 which had its epicenter near Concord, and an exhibit of how plants and animals live together.

Cousins Finishes Recruit Training

James W. Cousins, son of Mrs. Dorothy L. Stern, of 1064 Via Roble, completed recruit training, December 1, at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

The nine weeks of training transform raw recruits into bluejackets ready to take their place in the fleet.

He was also introduced to hydraulics and components, including hydraulic systems, landing gear units safety precautions, tools and equipment, brakes, corrosion prevention and removal and preservation of aircraft.

Before entering the Navy in February 1961, Taylor was graduated from Pleasant Hill High School.

Danville Jrs. Sponsor 'Teen-Age Miss' Contest

Thirteen senior girls from San Ramon High School have been selected to compete for the title of typical "Teen-age Miss" for 1962, according to Mrs. Raymond L. Neff of Danville, chairman of the Danville Junior Women's Club annual contest.

Mrs. Erma Willson, dean of women at the school, recently selected the "lucky-13."

Her choices were made on the basis of outstanding achievement, scholastic ability and all-round interests. These interests may include school, church, community and social activities.

Each candidate must complete a 600-word essay about herself, submit reference letters and a photograph. Three judges, not yet announced by the Danville juniors, will make the final decision in January.

Other clubs in the Mt. Diablo District of Women's Clubs are expected to participate in the contest by selecting the outstanding teen-age girl of the community, according to Mrs. Neff.

The winner selected by each club will compete for district honors at the convention, which will be held at the Diablo Country Club next April.

The 1961 winner was Miss Linda Jean Yates of Danville.

Girls from the San Ramon Valley area selected to compete this year are the Misses Barbara Arnold, Cathy Bailey, Carol Boeck, Barbara Bihler, Nancy Brown, Andre Bruzone, Ingrid Darwin, Diade Haagenen, Maryann Howard, Linda Hubbard, Marian Jones, Mimi Rasmussen and Sharon Werfelman.

A CHAMPAGNE cocktail party was held Sunday from 5 to 8 p.m. by members of Jasmine Branch to help support the part-pay program of Children's Hospital. Three homes were opened for the more than 250 guests attending. The couples pictured above are at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Hutchins, 65 Bates Road, Orinda. Left to right, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Anniversary Is Celebrated Congratulations to Children's Home Society of California on its 70th anniversary were recently extended by Governor Edmund G. Brown, according to Mrs. Jack Peddar of Lafayette, president of the society's Pandora chapter.

Although state headquarters are in Los Angeles, there are many local groups that work on fund raising events for children's home. More than 22,000 children have been placed by the society.

Recently a couple donated a new building to the society on Telegraph Avenue in Oakland. According to Mrs. Don J. Hutchinson of Orinda, president of Rocking Horse chapter, it is a beautiful building that helps to serve adoption needs in the Bay Area.

Acalanes Graduate Is Married in Puerto Rico

The Union Church, San Juan, Puerto Rico, was the scene of the recent Sunday afternoon wedding of the former Sharon Simms to Charles A. Peterson.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Simms, formerly of Sun Valley in Walnut Creek, was given in marriage by Emery Roth, representing her parents. The best man and matron of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Jorge Colon Nevarez.

Her street length gown of white faille with bell shaped skirt featured a V-shaped neckline with fitted bodice. A matching pillbox hat with choutop and brief veil was designed by the bride. White orchids and carnations made up the bouquet carried by the bride.

Mrs. Peterson is a graduate of Acalanes High School and Diablo Valley College. Prior to her marriage she had been living in San Francisco where she had been employed as a private secretary.

The benedict recently accepted the position of vice-president and secretary of the newly organized Insurance Company of America. Previously, the groom was employed as vice-president and chief executive officer of Insurance City Life Company in Hartford, Connecticut.

He received his bachelor of science in business administration degree from Boston University where he was an insurance major and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Women Bowlers Outshine The Men at Walnut Bowl

Al Shuler became the 40th member of the Walnut Creek Bowl's 600 Club, as he posted a 603 series last Sunday evening in the Untouchables League. Al posted his series on the strength of a 213 game.

Most of the week's honors should go to the women bowlers. Mel Schaff was top bowler for the girls with a 566 series by way of a 203 solo. Shirley Linn, bowling in the Diablo Valley Traveling League last Monday, got the distaff side off on the right foot by posting a 218-544.

Top single game was rolled by Gini Talbot of the Friday morning T.G.I.F. League with a big 231. Betty Shuler finished out the week with a big 222 game in the Untouchables League on Sunday.

The scoring in the Junior Majors was up too, as Gerry Bowen copped high single honors with a 235 game. Root Rutan posted high series of 599 with a 221 single effort. Ed Vick tossed a 234 and Harry Thornsberry hit for 232. Kellogg's Steak House, currently the hottest team in the league continued its torrid pace by bowling games of 996 and 953 for a 2713 team series.

Top bowlers for the month of November watched the Baltimore Colts nip the 49ers last Saturday at a cold Kezar Stadium. Recipients of these football tickets were Herb Reed (men's high handicap series), Stan Williams (men's high handicap game), Angie Murray (women's high handicap series),

The Ski Line . . .

Heavenly Valley Proves To Be Just That----

By HEC HANCOCK

Prevailing upon all the skill and cunning I could muster, to say nothing of the great quantities of endurance required, I managed last week to haul stakes for the high country and Heavenly Valley.

The logistics involved in preparing the average family for a ski holiday make the Normandy invasion look like a training maneuver by comparison. But the luxury of two days of mid-week skiing, free of the pressing throng, made the effort well worthwhile.

It was our first encounter with Heavenly Valley, and in all candor, we found the experience completely enjoyable. Despite the fact that the challenging "face" was closed for lack of another foot of snow, plenty of fun skiing was to be had.

THE AREA is serviced by three double chair lifts. Presently, skiing is available almost entirely from the two top lifts. Despite the fact that the lifts reach up to almost 10,000 feet elevation, the terrain is ideal for the advanced beginner and intermediate skier. My nine-year-old tiger, master of the snowplow turn, was in complete control of all the slopes he encountered.

Snow conditions were excellent. Continued low temperatures insure great ski conditions for the forthcoming Christmas and New Year's weekends. While additional snow is needed to open up the entire area to skiing, the two to three-foot pack of packed powder is sufficient for some fine skiing.

However, it isn't skiing alone that makes Heavenly Valley a real prize package.

Located in the midst of the Stateline-Bijou complex on the south shores of Lake Tahoe, it is part of a community capable of supporting over 20,000 visitors during the summer. Basically a summer area, there are plenty of facilities available at reasonable rates for the off-season winter visitor.

AS AN example, we stayed in a motel three blocks from the ski area, complete with housekeeping facilities. You can shop for all your needs at any of several nearby super markets.

Unlike many ski areas in which the after-ski entertainment is somewhat restricted, a fine variety of pleasure pursuits are available. You can choose from excellent shows at nearby Stateline, a variety of good restaurants, movies or even bowling alleys.

Easily accessible to the Lafayette-Walnut Creek skier via Highway 50, Heavenly Valley appears assured of a prominent position in California skiing.

Elsewhere, Dodge Ridge announced that a new site has been selected for their Golden Nugget standard races. The new course will cover a descent of 990 feet in the East Bowl, serviced by the new chair lift. The same course will be used each week during the season, with the weekly winners slated to meet in a runoff in April.

THE COURSE is designed to accommodate both the beginner and expert skier. By meeting the required times, a skier can qualify for Gold, Silver and Bronze Nugget awards. A best time of approximately one minute and thirty seconds is expected.

Last week marked the official opening of all ski areas throughout the Sierra. All resorts will be operating on a daily basis from here on out. Some of the smaller areas will resume weekend operations after New Year's.

The Sierra is a winter wonderland currently sparkling with its Christmas finery. Great snow conditions prevail without exception. The incongruity of a California white Christmas is available to all that wish to make the trip.

However, whether it's white or green, here's wishing one and all a very Merry Christmas.

Late Spurt Gives Seattle Tourney Crown Over Gaels

The 10th-ranked Seattle Chiefs defeated stubborn St. Mary's College, 78-68, to win the City of Roses Tournament at Portland last Saturday night.

St. Mary's had defeated the University of Portland, 61-60, Friday night to gain the championship round.

Next week, St. Mary's will take part in the annual West Coast Athletic Conference tournament being held at University of San Francisco.

St. Mary's first game is against San Jose State College at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

St. Mary's rebounded from a 14-point deficit at halftime against the undefeated Seattle quintet to tie the score at 62-all with three minutes to go, but lost a chance to win when the Chiefs scored a basket then got the ball back on a missed free throw.

St. Mary's was then forced to foul against Seattle's stalling tactics and the Chiefs sharpshooters made no mistakes from the free throw line.

SEATTLE led, 46-32, at the half as they hit 45 per cent of their shots from the floor despite a St. Mary's zone defense that prevented any close-in shots.

Steve Gray, an all-tournament choice, paced St. Mary's in both games.

He scored 21 in the second contest despite double-teaming by the Chiefs. Eleven of his 21 points came at the free throw line. Against Portland, the small forward (6-4) had 18 points.

Going into the two-day tourney with a 26-point average, Gray was a marked man as rival coaches set their defenses to stop him.

On opening night, reserve guard Joe Lee, subbing for the sick Tom Sheridan, scored 16 points and netted a free throw with less than two minutes to play that gave the Gaels their one-point victory.

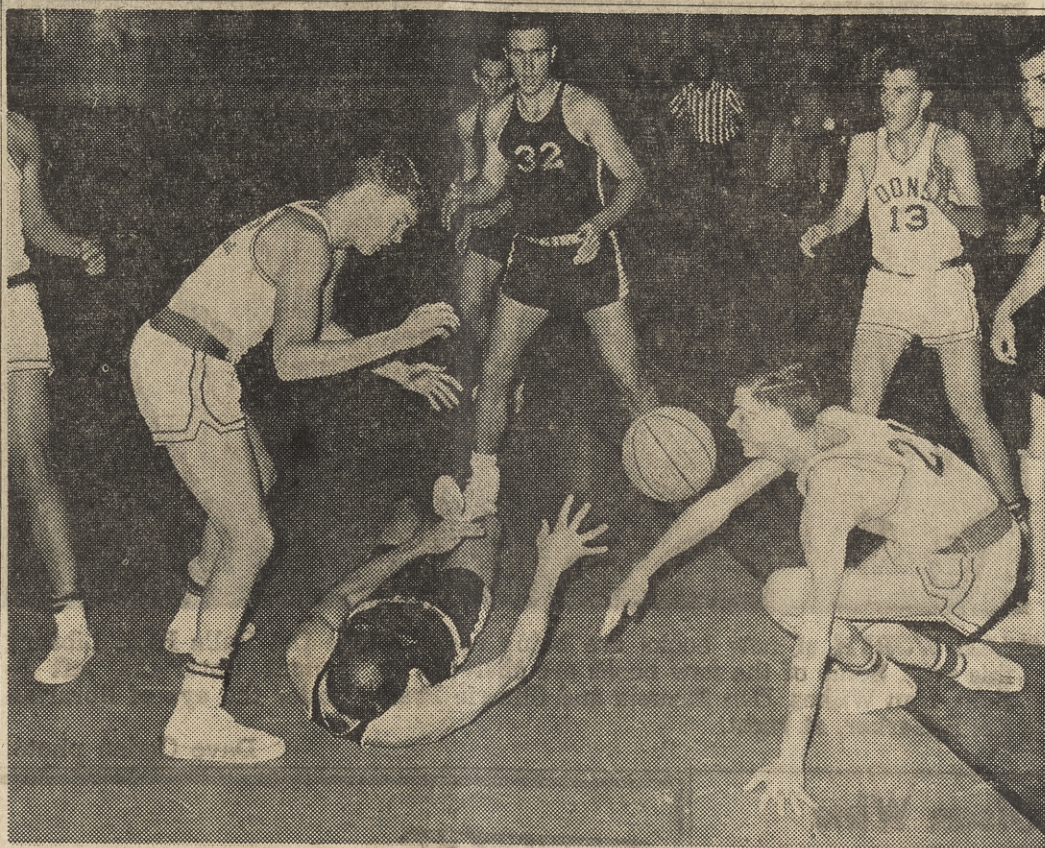

LEE, at 5-7, the smallest player on the floor, was second in scoring for both teams, led the Gaels in rebounds with eight.

In the final 1½ minutes, there was no scoring as the ball changed hands three times. Portland took three shots, one at the buzzer, but all misfired.

Reserve forward Dennis Schriener hit three straight shots from the outside in the late stages of the game to keep St. Mary's even with the host team.

THE GAELS resume play tomorrow night in Salt Lake City against the University of Utah which features All-American Bill (the Hill) McGill.

Dons Are Tops in Non-League Play

LOOK AT THOSE expressions on the three Acalanes players (white uniforms) as they attempt to take the ball away from an unidentified A. A. Stagg player who has fallen to the floor. The action took place under the Stagg basket after an Acalanes shot in the second quarter. The Acalanes players are Dave Bierk (left), Walt Cardinet (13) and Paul Hein (21). Sun photo by Bob Rush.

They Win Three of Four; FAL Play Begins Jan. 2

Prep basketball teams continue on their two-week holiday vacation, but it's the calm before the storm. League play in the Foothill Athletic loop opens the day school begins on January 2.

In the Contra Costa division, they begin playing for keeps on January 9.

Both leagues seem to have a certain amount of balance this season with no one team standing head and shoulders above the rest.

Among the seven local teams, Acalanes has proved to be the most regular winner with three triumphs in four tries.

MIRAMONTE, after losing three straight games by the closest of scores, has now won two in a row.

Miramonte has one non-league game left—against Pleasant Hill on January 5.

The Mats are the only Foothill team that plays a non-league encounter after the FAL season begins.

Del Valle, without seniors and height, is having problems to date. The Trojans have lost three of four contests.

With two regulars out of action for the last two games, San Ramon has taken it on the chin both times. The Wolves are 2-4, but are looking to better things when the league season begins.

Bob Metz and Don Rice are back in the lineup. John Swett outscored Pleasant Hill, 16-19 in the second quarter to open up a 21-14 lead at halftime, then held on the defeat the Rams, 42-37.

Al Oxley had 10 points to pace the Rams.

LAS LOMAS showed signs of awakening in the Anderson tournament last weekend and should be in the title chase gain this season.

Of the two "outside teams," Piedmont looks like a good bet to be in the thick of things in the FAL. Alhambra has been "so-so" in games to date.

Among CCD teams, College Park came on with a rush to win four straight games after a pair of opening losses. The Parkers are 4-3 and could prove troublesome in the league play.

Pleasant Hill has a 2-3 record in non-league play but has not performed up to coach Art Poulin's expectations. If the Rams had 34 runs batted in.

Eagles, Falcons Bow to Fremont in Holiday Play

Local teams again failed to win any official or unofficial titles in tournament action as visiting Fremont defeated both Clayton Valley and College Park in a "unofficial" holiday tourney at the two schools last weekend.

College Park did manage to win its fourth straight game on opening night at its gym, but was no match for Fremont at Clayton Valley the second evening.

The Falcons downed Oroville, 41-34, before the Tigers mangled them, 59-35.

Clayton Valley gave Fremont a good run for its money before losing out, 49-40, in the opening game of the first doubleheader.

The next evening on their home court, the Eagles were nipped by Oroville, 50-46.

Miller Picks 49ers Over the Raiders

Clark Miller of Orinda has signed a contract with the San Francisco 49ers, team officials announced last week.

Miller, a tackle on Utah State's 10th ranked team this season, was also a draft choice of the Oakland Raiders.

He was a first string choice on the All-Skyline Conference team.

Utah State tied for the conference title and was 9-0-1 overall before losing to Baylor in the Gotham Bowl.

The awards were presented at the annual fall athletic banquet last week on the campus.

Olsen Wins Toastmaster Speech Honors

"Four Steps for Better Discussion Meetings" was the title of Eric Olsen's prize winning speech at last week's meeting of the Diablo Toastmasters Club. Toastmaster Ralph Fisher introduced the speakers.

Tabletopics master Ken Jones used the holiday season as the subject for the one minute impromptu talks. Hugh Southworth's talk was voted the best. Master evaluator John Phillips introduced the evaluators for the principal speakers and Bill Williamson was awarded the "Boot & Spur" for his evaluation of Jack Nelson's speech.

The "Wizard of Ahs" went to Ken Jones and the "Yakkity-Yak" was presented to Merle Andrus for taking the most time to give his opinions.

The Diablo Toastmasters Club meets every Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Nut Bowl Restaurant, Pleasant Hill. All men interested in public speaking are invited.

Clinic Canceled

Range Finds Home as Sun Saddles Up

H. J. DeKat of 60 Geary Court, Walnut Creek, sold a gas range with his want ad in The Sun.

E. A. Bassett of 4032 Happy Valley Road, Lafayette, sold a double bed, bedspread, chrome breakfast table and chairs, occasional chairs, refrigerator and sectional, all with a Sun want ad.

These are typical of the hundreds of "success" stories reported each week to Sun advertisers.

The credit goes to the Sun's "5-in-1" system, where your want ad goes into the nearly 50,000-circulation Sun Shopping News on Wednesday, and then into the four Sun subscription newspapers on Friday.

The Sun Shopping News is distributed free in the central county.

The subscription newspapers are the Walnut Creek Sun, Orinda Sun, Lafayette Sun and Pleasant Hill Sun.

Your 14-word want ad will cost only $1.60 to run in the five papers.

Course for Mothers Will Begin

Expectant mothers and fathers, adoptive parents and grandmothers, are now signing up for the next "Mother and Baby Care Course" starting January 9 and continuing twice a week for three weeks.

Sponsor is the Greater Mt. Diablo Chapter of American Red Cross. The class is conducted by Mrs. L. E. Noll, a registered nurse and graduate of Los Angeles General Hospital.

She taught student nurses, handled admissions and emergency care for the neuro-surgery department there and in private hospitals.

Married to Dr. Leland E. Noll, she set up a mother and baby course in Southern California, Cambridge, England, where Dr. Noll was stationed while in the Air Force, and upon their return to the United States, at Travis Air Force Base.

Dr. and Mrs. Noll, parents of six children including two sets of twins, are residents of Walnut Creek.

The course as taught by Mrs. Noll and her assistant, Joanne Skolnic, consists of six lessons covering topics from before the baby comes, the birth of the baby, through baby's first year. Emphasis is placed on skills learned as bathing, holding, feeding, changing, and burping baby, formula preparation, reading a thermometer, and meeting problems that arise when a new baby comes into the home. A picture is shown of actual delivery of a baby. A physician attends one class for discussion of anesthesia and a question and answer discussion.

Enrollment is through Red Cross Headquarters, 2121 Ygnacio Valley Road, Walnut Creek, and the course is free.

In Christmas Mood? Hospital Needs Money!

A Christmas gift to John Muir Hospital toward the amount which must be raised within the next few weeks is this year's suggestion for inspired "Santa's."

To secure the Hill-Burton grant for a $4,000,000 150-bed community hospital here, an additional $300,000 must be raised by mid-February, said Mrs. Robert Hoyer, publicity chairman.

Tax-deductible gifts of cash, securities, and pledges all count in the time-limited quota, she said.

Contributions and pledges may be mailed to John Muir Hospital, 1361 Locust Street, Walnut Creek.

Semantics, Entertain, Says Expert

"General Semantics Can Be Entertaining" will be the topic for Stanley Diamond of San Francisco tonight at 8 p.m. at Diablo Valley College. Sponsor is the Contra Costa Chapter of the International Society for General Semantics.

At the 1960 International Conference held at Hawaii, Diamond presented a paper on "Are Automations New?" "The Abstraction That Dangled"; "Unstructured Boppers"; "Don't Wallow Around in Words, Man"; and "The Milk of Human Kindness."

The public is invited to attend these regular lecture series held at the junior college each fourth Friday night. There is no admission, according to Dr. D. K. Fisher of Pleasant Hill.

Inspiring Legends Tell Story of Xmas Colors

The colors red and green are an integral part of the Christmas story.

According to an ancient story, a little shepherdess, watching from afar as the Three Wise Men presented their gifts to the Christ Child, wept because she had no gift to offer.

Flowers sprang up where her tears fell, says the legend. She gathered them and hastened to present them to the infant Jesus.

A poor Mexican boy went to church on Christmas eve in great sadness because he did not have a gift to lay before the crib. His hand touched the petals and they turned a beautiful red.

A similar legend from Mexico tells how the flaming red poinsettia came to be connected with Christmas.

A poor Mexican boy went to church on Christmas eve in great sadness because he did not have a gift to lay before the crib. His hand touched the petals and they turned a beautiful red.

rose, a green plant with dazzling red blooms sprang up at his feet.

greens over their doors to indicate that Christ was present.

The poinsettia was named for America's first ambassador to Mexico — Joel R. Poinsett who brought the flame-hued plant from Mexico in 1829.

Holly is believed to have sprung up where the infant Jesus took his first baby steps.

Over the centuries, evergreens have played an important part in the Christmas celebration and the color green is symbolic of them and everlasting life.

Numerous tales are told of how the Christmas tree came to be associated with Christmas. Historians believe, however, that it was Martin Luther in Germany who trimmed the first tree with candles to show his family the splendor of the night on which Christ was born. Later, apples, candy, and colored paper were added to the decorations.

The holiday season is just one big open house in our family, with friends and relatives dropping in one after another to spread the season's cheer. And that's the time when it's nice to have lots of little things to eat—little cakes and Christmas candies, too. Here are a few of our favorite recipes—we hope they'll become your favorites.

Cafe-of-the-week: CHRISTMAS PETITS FOURS
Bake Betty Crocker Yellow Cake Mix in jelly roll pan, 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1 1/2, for 22 to 28 min. Cool. Cut cake into small squares, diamonds, hearts or other fancy shapes. Place cut cakes on cooling rack over waxed paper. Pour Glaze over tops and sides. Glaze dripping off cakes onto waxed paper can be reheated and used again until all cakes are iced. Decorate with candy flowers or silver dragees. Glaze: Combine 1/2 cup plus 1 1/2 tsp. water, 1/2 cup plus 1 1/2 tsp. light corn syrup and 2 tsp. vanilla in top of double boiler. Gradually stir in 12 cups (2 1/2 boxes) sifted confectioners' sugar. Heat until just lukewarm. Remove from heat, leaving glaze over hot water to keep it soft while frosting cakes. Do not overheat glaze.

Family favorite: SNOWBALLS

From Sugar Plum land: YULETIDE MINTS
Mint Wafers: Make Opera Fudge as directed on Betty Crocker Creamy White Frosting Mix Pkg.—except omit nuts. Blend in a few drops of peppermint flavoring. Tint, as desired, with food coloring. Drop by scant teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. Let set until firm. Chocolate Mint Balls: Follow directions for Fudge on Betty Crocker Chocolate Fudge Flavor Frosting Mix pkg. After cooking, add 1/2 cup chopped nuts and 1 tsp. peppermint flavoring. Cool; form into balls. Dip in chopped nuts, colored sugars or chocolate shot.

BETTY CROCKER makes the difference... taste it!

County Treasurer Can't Run; Others Debating

Most other county officials earlier said he wants a second and filing deadline is April 6, according to County Clerk Walter Paasch. Nominating petitions may be taken out as early as March 7. The June 5 primary will be shortened by the fact that superior, municipal and judicial court judges also constables, will not have to run this time.

Treasurer Kinney, an El Centro resident, has passed the 70-year mandatory retirement age. He took office in 1951, succeeding Charles Dodge. Other county officials whose terms will expire include Supervisor Thomas Coll of Concord, representing the third district; Supervisor James Kennedy of Richmond, first district; School Superintendent Floyd Marchus, Sheriff Walter Young, Assessor C. L. Dunklee, Auditor Howard McNamer, District Attorney John Nejedly. CORNER PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR L. H. Fraser, Clerk-Recorder Paasch. Terms are expiring for Congressman John Baldwin, State Senator George Miller, J., 10th District Assemblyman Jerome Waldie and 11th District Assemblyman John Knox. Christmas Cards---It All Started in 1875

Cheery Santas, glowing candles, glittering snowscapes, stirring Nativity scenes—these are just a few of the familiar and well-loved symbols of Christmas that grace today's Christmas cards.

When Christmas cards were first produced commercially in 1875 by Louis Prang, a Boston lithographer, the majority of Christmas designs had little or no relation to Christmas or the winter season.

They pictured summer flowers, seascapes, fairies, kittens, children playing, even fish and reptiles. Roses, especially the moss rose, received most of the attention on floral designs.

IT WAS a painting of a moss rose that started Louis Prang in the greeting card business and which eventually earned him the title "Father" of the American Christmas card.

Miss D. E. Whitney, a young art student who worked in Prang's shop, showed him a painting of a budding moss rose.

Intrigued by the simple painting, he decided to print it on small cards and add the words "Merry Christmas" as the British had been doing since the 1840's.

Prang's Christmas cards were reproduced in as many as 20 different colors.

Many were extremely large, trimmed with silk fringe and several had silk cords for hanging. Some were encrusted with blown glass "frosting."

PRINTING in several different colors was made possible by a developed by Prang—"chromovery delicate printing process lithography."

For several years before printing his first greeting card, Prang reproduced original paintings with this process and these were the "chromos," beloved by Americans of that day.

Their vast range of colors and shades, simulating the woven texture of an artist's canvas, received popular and professional acclaim the world over.
